They Are Very Dead Ford for President? Pinchot's Good Money Poor Bondelzwarts

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1922, Star Company.)

Decoration Day has gone, the number of graves is greater, the story about the same. Some went motoring, others fishing or golfing, some stayed home, 90 per cent. played, the others worked or decorated graves.

How dead they are, that are gone, except in the hearts of a few that remember; how dreadfully and completely dead. They might as well have died 3,000 years ago. No lesson is learned. More wars are hatching; the preparation that prevents war is ignored. We drift along, and celebrate the decorating of graves with a holiday.

"Henry Ford for President" clubs are to start in every Congressional district, and arrangements made for signatures enough to put Ford's name on the Presidential ballot everywhere.

Mr. Ford would make an interesting run, and cause agitation. His product is known to everybody, approved by everybody. He pays the highest wages, charges the lowest prices, and SUCCEEDS, which is most important.

But there are "buts." He employs no union men. He has virulently, unjustly and ignorantly attacked the Jews, a most useful part of the Citizenship, and efficient when it comes to politics, or anything else. He has suggested substitutes to be used as money, in place of "gold, gold, yellow and cold." Imagine how that would worry the bankers; they have something to say about elections. Imagine a Presidential order: "Throw out all that gold in the treasury; we don't need it."

Ford's candidacy is not improbable, and let no man laugh at it. You might see bankers, union labor, and various other things, including the Democratic and Republican parties, uniting on a candidate to beat him, as Democrats and Republicans united—unsuccessfully to beat "Golden Rule Jones" of Toledo, or Berger of Milwaukee.

We are to see strange things in this country, and one may be the two old parties hunting for a man strong enough to beat Ford.

Gifford Pinchot reports that he spent $93,562.14 on his victorious primary campaign for Governor of Pennsylvania. His virtuous, vanquished opponent, Mr. Alter, with bosses, administration, high finance and the old Pennsylvania machine back of him, spent only $1,131.80. He says to himself: Perhaps he and his backers thought they had it all arranged, and did not need to spend money —perhaps he did not know what his friends really spent for him. In any case, it shows that laws forbidding LEGITIMATE use of money in campaigns might help the machine and hurt the people.

Pinchot spent his own money for the chance to serve the people honestly, and had he NOT spent it he could not have won the nomination.

The Bondelzwarts, Hottentots of South West Africa, start a rebellion against English rule, and are on the warpath, waving their assagais, crouching fiercely behind shields of dried cowhide and telling each other they will win, poor, deluded Bondelzwarts.

Their assagais had little chance against England, when her machine guns were on the ground, and subject to ambush. Now the machine guns come flying through the air, with dropping bombs and poison gas if needed.

The fliers only laugh at the poor savages, but remember orders not to kill too many. They are needed in the mines.

This country can be made as safe against Europe and Asia as England is safe against those benighted Hottentots. With an ocean on each side, the power to raise an army of 5,000,000 in six weeks, we need only trained gunners, officers, fliers, plenty of flying machines and submarines, merchant ships, and chemists for explosives and poison gas. For if others use the last against us, and they will, if war comes, we shall use it against them, and we ought to be ready. Are we to be the Bondelzwarts or the overhead fighters in the next war.

We can keep ready, CHEAPLY. Among the standing armies of the world, ours is fourteenth in size. We need no great army, only plenty of the latest fashion in weapons—fliers to drop T. N. T. and paralyzing gases especially.

Weapons that are barbarous in attack are plain common sense in defence. If a man entered your house to kill your children, would you not throw a can of vitriol in his face, or suffocate him with ammonia?

William Rosendorf, aged six, had been dumb from birth, until he went up in a flying machine. The doctor testified that he ut-

HUNT WARD HOME FOR BULLET

Information Secured by the American Stirs Action in the Peters Case

New York, May 31.—Westchester County authorities were jolted into intense activity today by the exclusive story in the Hearst newspapers indicating that Clarence Peters of Haverhill, Mass., was killed in Walter S. Ward's library and not on the road near Kensico Reservoir.

Directed by Sheriff George Warner, they began a new and more thorough examination of the interior of Ward's home at New Rochelle.

Sheriff Werner, District Attorney Weeks and the others were amazed, but by no means incredulous when shown the Boston American story of the actual facts attending the killing of Clarence Peters, penniless ex-sailor, by Walter Ward, police commissioner of New Rochelle and son of the bread king. That story tends to establish the following facts:

1—That Clarence Peters was shot by Ward in the Ward library in New Rochelle, not near the Kensico Reservoir, where the body was found.

2—That at the same time a friend of Peters, who was with him, was shot through the shoulder, and is now in a hospital.

3—That the twin shooting followed the discovery by Ward that his interview with Peters and Peters' friend was being spied upon by two men whose names have not yet been brought into the case, but whose knowledge of his relations with the ex-sailor meant his ruin.

4—That these two intruders, who caused the slaying of Peters and the wounding of his friend, stood by Ward afterward, and tried to help him to conceal the crime. Both were men of his own social order, one a friend of his family.

5—That there was another blackmail plot beside the one Ward says Peters was engaged in; and that this plot was the real cause of the double shooting in New Rochelle.

SEEK FOURTH BULLET.

"It doesn't seem likely a great ystem of newspapers would publish uch a story without good foundaon," said District Attorney Weeks.

The New Rochelle police, who ave all along tried to shield the son of the bread king, of course deny the tale.

But Sheriff Werner takes it seriously; seriously enough to examine the inside of the Ward library for the mark of a fourth bullet, which is supposed to have gone wild and buried itself in the woodwork.

He was accompanied by finger-print experts, who were to go over the library interior with powerful glasses looking for mute evidence of the tragedy as it really occurred.

LOGUE GIRL WELL EVE OF DEATH

Mother Defends Nurse and Breaks Down at Trial of Accused Woburn Dentist

There were six persons gathered in the Woburn apartments of Dr. Michael M. Stevens on Christmas Eve last, the night before the morning beautiful Grace Logue was found cold in death.

This was revealed today at the trial of Dr. Stevens, charged with manslaughter in connection with the young woman's death.

The guests were Dr. Stanley Rosa, Woburn dentist; Daniel J. McGillicuddy, prominent attorney; Miss Gertrude C. Bowes of No. 20 Arcadia street, Dorchester, and Miss Eunice Malloy. Dr. Ross called with Miss Malloy, he testified, to give Dr. Stevens and Miss Logue, employed by the accused man as a nurse, Christmas gifts.

What went on in the apartment was not revealed at the trial, questions being confined to the condition callers found Miss Logue in.

Testimony conflicted here. Dr. Ross testified that while he was Miss Logue's dentist no mention was made to him of her suffering with an ulcerated tooth. He said he saw no towel about the nurse's face.

MOTHER WEEPS ON STAND.

Miss Bowes testified that the dead girl had a towel on her face that night and also complained of suffering from toothache.

A poignant touch slipped into the trial today with the entrance of the aged mother of the dead girl, Mrs. Susan Logue of West Everett.

Veteran court attendants and spectators crowding the rear of the East Cambridge Court room turned away their heads as the broken-hearted mother shook with grief and appeared about to slip out of the witness chair in a faint.

So weak was Mrs. Mrs. Logue through grief and injuries sustained in a recent accident she fottered and had to be helped to the witness stand.

She wore deep mourning which contrasted her silvered hair painfully.

In a faltering voice Mrs. Logue testified that the last time she had seen her girl alive was two days before she was found dead in Dr. Stevens' apartments.

"We had gone shopping together," she said. "Grace was well and in good spirits."

DENY GIRL DRUG ADDICT.

She branded as "mean lies" reports that "her girl" used morphine.

So also did Miss Bowes, pretty and petite, who testified that "Grace never used morphine."

Dr. William H. Boos, of the Harvard Medical College, who examined

CURLEY CALLED AT 'L' PROBE

A special Suffolk County Grand Jury, directed by District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien, today began an investigation of the circumstances attending the passage of the Elevated Control Act by the 1918-1919 Legislature.

Mayor James M. Curley, armed with formidable looking papers, was the first witness, and was before the jury fifteen minutes. More than a score of other witnesses were called.

District Attorney O'Brien's action in calling the special session so soon was something of a surprise.

There was general speculation as to the attitude of the District Attorney in causing the probe of the passage of the Public Control Act.

The Legislature a few weeks ago, after hearing much evidence, reported that the claim that the bill was carried by corruption and that

NEW CRISIS MAY END IN RETURN OF TROOPS

Warning Against De Valera's Treaty Stand Is Sounded by Winston Churchill

Belfast, May 31 (By Associated Press)—Sir James Craig, the Ulster Premier, announced today that he and the Marquis of Londonderry, the Ulster Minister of Education, were going to London tonight at the British Government's invitation to confer regarding the situation in Ireland. He said they were going on the distinct understanding that they would not meet the Dublin representatives.

London, May 31 (By the Associated Press)—Great Britain will tolerate no republic in Ireland, and if the terms of the Anglo-Irish treaty are not carried out by the Irish, the British government will resume her liberty to act in taking back the power conferred on the provisional government and in reoccupying the territory evacuated, it was declared in the House of Commons today by Winston Churchill, the Colonial Secretary.

Mr. Churchill made this declaration in his promised statement to the House of Commons on the Irish situation.

He drew a gloomy picture of the state in which Ireland finds herself today.

While dealing sympathetically with the provisional government's plight and detailing at length its reasons, as conveyed to him, for entering into the recent agreement with Eamon De Valera, the Republican leader, he vigorously deprecated the pact as striking directly at the treaty, which he declared would be broken if the four Republicans who are to be taken into the Irish government following the forthcoming elections refused to sign the declaration of adherence to the treaty.

Later in the debate, in which the Ulster group assailed the government's policy, Mr. Churchill frankly admitted that British troops were being held in Dublin as a preliminary step to military operations if these became necessary.

The agreement reached between Michael Collins, head of the provi-

BRITISH THREATEN TO KILL TREATY AND REOCCUPY IRELAND

WARNING THAT REPUBLIC MUST NOT BE SET UP SOUNDED IN COMMONS BY CHURCHILL

sional government, and Eamon De Valera, the Republican leader, however, struck directly at the provisions of the treaty, Mr. Churchill declared.

The consequences of the agreement were very serious, he said, and it seemed probable that the Irish people would not be able to give free expression to their views.

If Mr. De Valera or any of the others who might be ministers in the Irish government refused to sign the declaration prescribed in the treaty, the secretary continued, the treaty was broken by that fact, and the Imperial government resumed such liberty of action—whether in regard to the resumption of the powers which had been transfigured or the re-occupation of territory—as it might think appropriate and proportionate to the gravity of the breach.

GOVERNMENT MUST ACT.

"I must now in fairness," continued the secretary, "set forth the reasons which I understand led or forced the provisional government to enter this compact, which is fundamentally opposed to the treaty.

"They declared the conditions in Southern Ireland were degenerating so rapidly that they had not the power to hold a freely contested election; that sporadic conflicts would have resulted in many parts; that the ballot boxes would have been burned and persons and candidates intimidated or prevented from taking part in the election, and that no coherent expression of the national will would have resulted.

"If that is true," continued Mr. Churchill, "it is a very terrible reflection upon the Irish people and their capacity to use the democratic institutions to which they have so long and so lofty proclaimed their devotion. It is also a reflection upon the government, which while urging us continuously to withdraw our forces in order to make the whole of the Irish people see that we were acting in strict good faith, has not been able in the whole of the six months that had elapsed, with all the resources at their disposal, to organize an efficient and adequate police force capable of maintaining the treaty position.

"The second reason advanced was that the progress of disorder, lawlessness and social degeneration has been so rapid and extensive in the twenty-six counties since the departure of the British troops and the disbanding of the Royal Irish constabulary that the provisional government could not possibly guarantee the ordinary securities of life and property if these securities were challenged by an active and violent Republican minority."

UNABLE TO HALT RAIDERS.

"This minority, it was explained, constituted mainly a comparatively small number of armed men, violent in method and fanatical in temper, in many cases disinterested or impersonal in motive. But, behind these, strengthening, disgracing and multiplying these, were a large number of common sordid ruffians and brigands, raiding, murdering and pillaging for personal gain or private revenge.

"These bandits pursued their disinterested course under the glimmer of the Republic, and were inextricably intermingled with the bona fide Republican visionaries. The provisional government declared they found themselves unable to deal with these bandits while at the same time they were engaged in an armed struggle with bona fide Republicans.

"They declared that the agreement which they entered into with the Republicans would isolate the brigands and enabel them to be struck at and suppressed.

"They further said it was in the power of the minority in Ireland, by murdering British soldiers and ex-soldiers, retired rich men or Protestants in the south, or by disturbing Ulster, to produce a series of episodes, which, if prolonged, would destroy the relationship between Great Britain and Ireland and render the carrying out of the treaty impossible on both sides."

ROUSE IRE OF CATHOLICS.

The Secretary said it must be admitted that the disturbances in Ulster for many months had undoubtedly played a part in making the position of the provisional government in Ireland difficult, exasperating the Catholic majority in southern Ireland and increasing the number of Mr. De Valera's supporters.

"Mr. De Valera has been fully aware of this," said Mr. Churchill, "and one of his surest means of striking against the provisional government and the treaty has been exciting of outrage in the northern area and so provoking counter action which would be sure to raise passions in the south."

"It is almost certain," Mr. Churchill went on, "that the Irish people will not be able to say in an intelligible way whether they accept or reject the treaty offered by Great Britain. A certain number of Labor or Independent candidates may doubtless secure election, but it is difficult to see how the Parliament resulting from the election and the government to be based on that Parliament after the election will have either representative or democratic quality, or authority as it is usually understood.

"The provision of the agreement that four anti-treaty men will be included in the government after the election also points directly at the provisions of the treaty."

The British, in making the treaty, the Secretary continued, did not demand that the members of the Parliament should take the oath prescribed by the treaty until the Free State Parliament when it should finally be constituted.

"We were content," said Mr. Churchill, "with the provision inserted in Article 17 of the treaty that the members of the government should in this interim period sign a declaration of adherence to the treaty, which heretofore has been signed willingly by all the members of the provisional government."

Irish Republic Will Not Be Tolerated, Says Churchill

London, May 31.—"Great Britain will not tolerate the establishment of a republic in Ireland.

"In the event a republic is set up, it is the intention of the British government to hold Dublin as one of the preliminary and essential steps of military operations."

So declared Secretary of the Colonies Winston Churchill in his address on the new Irish crisis in the House of Commons today.

He added that the British troops remaining in Dublin were militarily secure and were awaiting eventualities. He said they would seize the city if emergency arose.

Serious Fighting Is Raging in Strabane

Belfast, May 31.—A message from Strabane this afternoon said desperate fighting had broken out and that the panic-stricken townspeople had deserted the streets. Snipers were firing continuously from housetops, the message said, and hundreds of windows had been smashed.

Another report said 500 Sinn Feiners were concentrated in the neighborhood of Clogher, County Tyrone. Referring to the fighting in the County Fermanagh by Republican troops, Sir James said no word was needed from him to emphasize the gravity of that offence.

"If a happening of that sort occurred in any other part of the British empire," he declared, "it would be classified by the government and people as an out-and-out declaration of war. Patience is never a sign of weakness. By negotiations and by putting our views before the British and the people living in the south and west the country may be rescued from ultimate chaos."

WARD HOME IS SEARCHED

Ward, out on bail, continued to dodge newspapermen today.

At the same time, it is known, county detectives and State troopers are sweeping over the Westchester Hills seeking a new witness.

Is that witness the man in the hospital? They don't say. But they admit he holds the key to the whole secret. He is said to be silent because he cannot tell the truth about the Peters killing without disgracing himself and his family.

Coroner Fitzgerald today announced he would not set a date for the inquest in the Peters case until the investigation was completed.

BRINGS NEW ASPECT.

The information in the hands of the American changes the aspect of the Ward-Peters case materially.

There were wheels within wheels and blackmail plots within blackmail plots, apparently. Somebody not yet named figured in the real story of the tragedy.

Walter S. Ward, according to the story, killed Clarence Peters and wounded the ex-sailor's companion, when he discovered there were two other persons in his New Rochelle home, "disciplining" the 16-year-old daughter with the Haverhill boy and his friend.

That discovery brought the millionaire's son face to face with ruin, disgrace and a future without hope.

He had reason to believe the two intruders, one of them a friend of his family had been introduced into his home to eavesdrop.

Furious at the idea he had been double-crossed, he drew his revolver and fired four shots.

The fourth shot lodged in the wall of the Ward Library, where the shooting scene was staged.

Ward and Peters and the other man—the man now in hospital—were grouped about a library table, it is stated, when the master of the house discovered there were spies under his roof.

The two uninvited guests had quietly gained entrance, probably by a rear window, and were making their way toward the library when they encountered a maid and discovered themselves.

POLICEMAN APPEARS.

For the maid promptly fled, screaming "Robbers. There are two men in the house."

The intruders followed her into the library, where Ward, ashen-faced, stood to receive them. The shooting started immediately.

The sound of the shots had scarcely been stilled when a policeman on the beat came running, rapping on the paving for reinforcement. He is a dark, stocky man, about fifty years old. Ushered into the library, he stood face to face with his chief, Police Commissioner Walter Ward, and surveyed with amazement the scene before him. One man was dead, one apparently dying. Ward, quite evidently the directing spirit in the tragedy that had been enacted, stood cool and collected and told his underling that he "would take care of this."

The two intruders, whose coming had caused the shooting, stood by Ward, man of their own class, against the dead sailor and his wounded friend.

"Leave this to the commissioner," they advised the policeman, and this individual left, not satisfied but overawed.

A few minutes later a second policeman arrived. He demanded that an immediate report of the shooting be made. It took the efforts of all three men to quiet him.

After the police had gone there was a lengthy debate in the Ward library. A plan to cover up was formulated. The Wards have stuck to it ever since.

The wounded man was taken away in a Ward automobile, after being warned to keep quiet.

PETERS' CAREER.

Peter s body was put in another machine, taken to the vicinity of Kensico Reservoir, and cast into the bushes. First, most of the marks of identification were removed. Those remaining were overlooked.

Neither Peters nor his unnamed friend left the suit in the Ward home had revolvers, the American is informed.

The American has traced Clarence Peters' career. A few years ago Peters, then a schoolboy, went to New York from Haverhill. He dreamed of instant fortune. But the fortune failed to materialize. He had a hard time of it. As country boys often do, and he fell in with a clique who showed him "the easier way" and he went that way. He got much money and finally came to know Walter S. Ward.

Ku Klux Klan Letter on Ward Case Received

By International News Service.

New York, May 31.—The Evening Journal, which published the revised version of the Ward mystery, today announced receipt of a letter signed "Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, Inc., which read:

"You have printed a lot about the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, a lot that was not the truth. Very shortly you will have a chance to print a lot more, but this time the truth.

"Klansman Peters was killed by Walter S. Ward, a man of great wealth, so we heard; however, wealth or position in life makes no difference to the Ku Klux Klan."

The letter further said: "We have given them (the officials) five days more to make good and tell the truth."

"The messenger bearing this message to New York," the letter continued, "is authorized to call the 100,000 members which we have in your State, if need be, to see that justice is done. We hope that this will not be necessary. We hope that we will not have to take the law into the court of our tavern, but we will if necessary if Ward is not tried for that of which he is guilty.

The letter was mailed in New York, special delivery, at 6:30 last night. The original envelope enclosed bore in one corner, "Return in ten days to P. O. Box 1204, Atlanta, Ga.," and underneath this the letter S.

FILM ACTRESS MAY REVEAL WARD SECRET

New York, May 31.—Will a charming woman, now in the foreground, play a part in the solution of the slaying of Clarence Peters?

Does Mrs. Margaret Black, motion picture actress, whose friendship for the Wards is acknowledged by intimates of both families, know anything of the menace that drove Walter S. Ward to kill Clarence Peters in the lonely hours of early morning on May 15?

Acquaintances of Mrs. Black, recently returned from Europe, where she made a picture, say that they saw her in the crowd on the pier awaiting the arrival of the Majestic on the liner's first trip across the Atlantic.

George H. Ward and his wife returned on that vessel. It is said the elder Ward cut short his honeymoon to answer the appeal to his son, who had communicated to him the threats of blackmail.

Mrs. Black's appearance in the Ward case came when her husband, Bela B. Black, an importer, acknowledged having retained Fred K. Goldsmith in contemplation of a civil action against his wife.

In the Hotel Claridge, where he lives, Black said that he had heard of his wife's friendship for members of the Ward family. He went on:

"I am informed that her moving picture ambitions have been advanced greatly through the interest of a well-known figure in the moving pictures world.

"I also have heard of the attentions paid my wife by a much more widely known and wealthier man. I wish to say that my lawyer must have been misunderstood when he was quoted as saying that I would bring an alienation suit.

"I have no such purpose. I shall not bring any suit at all against this man, unless it is necessary and justified beyond the shadow of a doubt."

RETICENT ON MYSTERY.

Asked if he had any information that might throw light on the heretofore impenetrable mystery of Walter S. Ward's confessed slaying of Clarence Peters, Black answered emphatically that he had not.

In the last year, as Margaret Black, Mrs. Black has appeared in widely heralded screen productions. Though never taking more than a minor part her presence before the camera has always been with a sort of distinction that set her apart from the numerous "supers" and "extras" of the film world. She possesses a rare type of Italian blonde beauty.

The Blacks were married in New York on September 4, 1910, in the Temple of the Brotherhood of Man. The romance developed when she was a student, not yet sixteen, in a finishing school in Budapest, where her parents sent her after she had been graduated from Wadleigh High School. Black was a lieutenant of the Royal Hungarian Guards. He adopted the English version of his name, which was Schwarz, before he came to America.

Detective Reports Ross Clew in Boston

New York, May 1.—H. J. Conners, detective employed by the Peters family, returned from Boston today alleging he had found a "Charley Ross" and a "Jack the Speeder" in a Boston suburb, in the persons of Charles Rowland and Jack Tuttle.

Both denied any connection with the case and refused to come to New York, Conners declared. Rowland denied knowledge of either Ward or Peters, according to the detective, while Tuttle said he knew Peters when they were both in the Navy but had never heard him mention Ward.

Attorney Michael L. Sullivan of Salem, counsel for the Peters family, said today he had no knowledge of Detective Conners locating Ross and "Jack the Speeder." He said he doubted the authenticity of the report.

Klan Officers Suspect Opponent Sent Letter

By International News Service.

Atlanta, Ga., May 31.—National officials of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan today admitted that P. O. Box 1204, printed on an envelope in which was contained a letter to the New York Journal commenting on the Ward-Peters murder mystery, is a postoffice box rented by the Klan here, but denied the Klan had any connection with the delivery of the letter.

N. L. Savage, chief of staff, commenting in the absence of Imperial Kleagle Clarke, said he had no doubt the letter was despatched by some one opposing the Klan.

Marilyn Miller Denies She Ever Met Ward

Reports from New York linking the name of Marilyn Miller star of the musical comedy "Sally," now playing the Colonial Theatre, with that of Walter S. Ward, confessed slayer of Clarence Peters of Haverhill were emphatically denied by Miss Miller. A Westchester, N. Y., man said that Ward was attentive to Miss Miller.

When seen at the Colonial Theatre between the acts Miss Miller branded this story as false,

MOTHER FIGHTS MARRIAGE OF MATHILDE

By International News Service.

Chicago, May 31.—Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick will make a determined fight in the Probate Court to oppose the marriage of her daughter Mathilde to Max Oser, Swiss riding master, according to announcement today by Attorney Charles S. Cutting, attorney for Mrs. McCormick.

Mrs. McCormick, however, will make no fight against the appointment of her former husband, Harold F. McCormick, as legal guardian of her daughter, Attorney Cutting said.

The opposition to the marriage with Oser is to take the form of a statement to be filed in the Probate Court, in which the mother's objections are set forth, he said.

The formal statement to be issued by Mrs. McCormick will set forth in detail her position in regard to Mathilde and the guardanship of Mr. McCormick, it was stated.

At the home of Mrs. McCormick an inquiry concerning the statement brought the brief reply:

"If Mr. Cutting gave a statement he knew what he was talking about. We have nothing to say here."

By agreement of counsel the hearing was postponed until 3 o'clock this afternoon.

the House. It will then go to the Governor.

The bill provides that any person with a hypodermic syringe or other implement used in the administering of drugs illegally in his possession is liable to $100 fine or imprisonment for two years or both.

A person convicted of having drugs illegally in his possession is liable to five years' imprisonment in State prison or from one to two and one-half years in jail.

Anyone convicted under the bill of maintaining a resort where drug addicts congregate is liable to imprisonment from three months to two years.

The bill provides a person may be committed either as a voluntary patient or by order of the court in an institution designated by the Governor for treatment of drug addicts. Heretofore it was impossible to commit any drug addict to an institution for treatment except by placing the crime stigma upon him.

URGE WOMAN BE PUT ON ACCIDENT BOARD

The appointment of a woman to the International Accident Board today was recommended to the legislative Committee on Judiciary by a delegation of prominent women headed by Mrs. George B. Fearing and Mrs. True Worthy White. Many of the industrial accidents are suffered by women, they said, and the sympathetic interest of women is needed to handle their cases justly. They favored a bill which would increase the board from five to six members, the sixth to be a woman.

tered several words distinctly as the machine rose. Excitement, something "worth while," did it.

A Chicago lady had been for years unable to walk, until her husband was appointed minister to England. Immediately she rose and began trying on dresses rapidly.

Many have powers lying dormant that would be roused to usefulness by something "worth while."

Excitement preceding the Civil War brought out Lincoln and Grant. Without it, one might have remained a country lawyer, the other a man unknown to the country, not well known to his locality.

What the flying machine did for that boy, ambition does for some of us, but not for all. Many take unsuspected powers into the grave.

CHORUS GIRLS, BEATEN AT "PAJAMA" REVEL, QUIT BOSTON

SAY CITY 'TOO WILD FOR US'

Marie La Von and Eleanor La Sar Leave Without Starting Suits

"We're through with Boston, it's too wild for us."

This was the parting shot of Marie La Von and Eleanor La Sar, chorus girls in the recent Back Bay "pajama revel," who have left Boston for New York, after denouncing the men in attendance at the revel as "brutal woman beaters."

Both girls left on the eve of threatened prosecution of the man who, they allege, beat them. The party was held at No. 246 Commonwealth avenue.

Through their attorney, Bernard E. Carbin, the girls were to have sworn out warrants charging attack against several prominent men.

When William F. Fitzgerald, Jr., the banker's son, who attended the affair, made charges that lawyers had tried to blackmail him all talk of prosecution ceased.

Attorney Carbin who had stated that he would seek warrants in connection with the case now refuses to say why they were not sought.

"I'm through with that case and I will make no statement whatever about any phase of it. I'll answer no questions, either," he declared.

It is understood that no money settlement of the case has been made and that young Fitzgerald's frank story of the party made this unnecessary.

Miss La Von and Miss La Sar have been engaged by the producer of a musical comedy now playing Broadway.

Geneva Mitchell Still Trying to Get Job Back

New York, May 31.—Miss Geneva Mitchell, who was suspended from the cast of "Sally" last week, following publicity given a "pajama party" in the Back Bay section of Boston, expressed the hope again today of being able to convince Florenz Ziegfeld that she had not taken part in "a wild orgy" and of being reinstated in the company before it is taken to Chicago in September.

"I have not yet been able to see Mr. Ziegfeld," the sixteen-year-old actress said, "but I will write him asking for an appointment."

S. F. Kingston, general manager of the company, said:

"I don't see why we should see Miss Mitchell. As far as we are concerned the matter is closed. Miss Mitchell is through with the company and we have no intention of seeing her."

FLETCHER OUT FOR SENATOR MONK'S SEAT

Harry M. Fletcher, a member of the Republican State Committee, has filed papers for the Republican nomination for Senate in the Norfolk-Suffolk district. Norton in the thirteenth and Martin L. Martin in the ninth district.

Conditions Now Right To Buy Real Estate

The demand for conservative investments means increased real estate activity. That demand is great now; it will be even greater and as it grows, real estate values will increase.

There are other conditions known to all, which make real estate investment a wise move. Use judgment and foresight and invest. Read the "Real Estate" columns from day to day, and profit by present buying conditions.

STATE'S CLAIM OF DEATH

The Sargent painting, "The Synagogue," may be taken from the Public Library by the State's right of eminent domain if a bill reported favorably by the Legislative Committee on Judiciary this afternoon is passed.

The bill was presented by Representative Coleman Silbert as an effort to appease those who say the painting is a libel on the Jewish race.

There will be a public hearing on it tomorrow, when it is expected those who have denounced the work or art as offensive and trouble-breeding, will turn out in force.

The agitation against the painting, which is supposed to represent the fall of Judaism, was begun in the Legislature several months ago and thus far has been without avail.

A bill calling upon the library trustees to remove the painting was held by Attorney-General Allen to be unconstitutional. Representative Coleman Silbert has since filed a bill to permit the removal by eminent domain proceedings.

Members of the Legislature were today urged to support the eminent domain bill by the following letter received by them from the B'nai Brith.

"We earnestly request your support of the bill as amended. The picture 'The Synagogue,' which is in the Boston Public Library and which represents the fall of Judaism, has no place in a public educational institution supported by public taxation. It is historically false and is a gross libel."

The appeal pointed out that both Catholics and Protestants have joined in the demand for the removal of the painting.

BEHEADS SON, KILLS WIFE AND TRIES SUICIDE

New York, May 31.—Crazed by jealousy of the love of his wife and his son for each other, George Krumpet, forty-eight years old, beheaded his seven-year-old son Willard, killed his wife by slashing her throat, then severed his own jugular vein and is dying in Bellevue Hospital.

Crowds gathered before the apartment on East Forty-fifth street, attracted by the cries, and four detectives who were passing in a car rushed to investigate. Krumpet staggered out and collapsed at their feet.

He was taken back to his apartment and propped in a chair, where he nodded assent to police questioning as to whether he had killed his wife and child with a blood-stained penknife which lay on a table. On the boy's lips was a smile, indicating he did not know what happened when he was attacked while asleep. The mother apparently had been killed while defending her son. A relative told the story of serious quarrels over the boy.

246 TRAINS ADDED TO N. Y. SUBWAY SERVICE

New York, May 31.—The congestion on New York's subways was expected to soon become a thing of the past with the addition today by the Interborough Rapid Transit of 246 trains to their daily service. These additional trains will give about 100,000 more seats for passengers.

And Now Flappers Among Horses are Dolling Up

Major A. E. Donovan, veterinary surgeon of the First Corps Area, objects to the ladies dolling up.

"Too much rouge," says he. "Too much rouge."

"But goodness," grasped the lady reporter, "its a lady's prerogative (or something like that)."

"I know, I know," said the Major. "But too much is too much. They don't need it."

Imagine that! And just because some of the big mares in the work-horse parade had their feet ronged to make 'em look pretty!

COAKLEY FAILS TO APPEAR IN COURT

Attorney Daniel H. Coakley did not appear in United States Circuit Court of Appeals at the hour appointed today to oppose the petition for his disbarment in that court. The hour set was 10 o'clock, although there was no session of court today. "From the time these Federal disbarment proceedings were filed against him I have heard not one word from Mr. Coakley," said Assistant U. S. District Attorney Charles P. Curtis, Jr.

"The case has gone over until next Tuesday. If we don't hear from him in the meantime I intend to ask his immediate disbarment, as he has defaulted the opportunity to defend himself."

MOTHER AND SISTER OF VICTIM AND DIAGRAM SHOWING HOW STATE CLAIMS NURSE DIED OF DRUGS.

MRS. GETTIGAN TESTIFIES FOR HUSBAND

Meals of Woman Poison Victim Prepared by Sister, Wife Claims

Defence testimony began today in the trial of J. Thomas Gettigan of Revere, charged with the murder of his aunt, the late Mrs. Elizabeth M. Cook, whose exhumed body was found to contain arsenic.

Gettigan is also charged with conspiracy to kill his uncle, the late Clinton W. Richardson of Revere.

Mrs. Richardson testified she avoided Gettigan told of an alleged plot by Gettigan to kill her husband and his prediction that Mrs. Cook would be dead within two weeks, which was fulfilled.

Today Mrs. Myrtle Gettigan, wife of the accused, linked Mrs. Richardson with the death of Mrs. Cook when she testified Mrs. Richardson served Mrs. Cook's meals and prescribed medicine for her previous to Mrs. Cook's death.

CONDITION GREW WORSE.

The Richardsons lived in the downstairs apartment of the house occupied by the Gettigans, Mrs. Gettigan testified. Mrs. Cook, who made her home with the Gettigans, had meals brought up to her by Mrs. Richardson, the witness said.

"A month or so before Mrs. Cook died," said Mrs. Gettigan, "Mrs. Cook went downstairs one day and spent an hour with Mrs. Richardson. She came up and her condition grew rapidly worse. She suffered pains, loss of appetite and was very thirsty."

Arthur V. Sanborn, undertaker, testified that the visit he made to the Gettigan home previous to Mrs. Cook's death was at the request of Mrs. Richardson. Mrs. Richardson, he testified, also called him in after Mrs. Cook died.

In the early part of 1921, when Mrs. Cook was confined to a hospital, Gettigan offered his blood for a transfusion operation to save Mrs. Cook's life.

"It was the wrong kind," said Mrs. Gettigan, "so the operation was unsuccessful."

MADE HOME FOR AUNT.

The little woman, who has stayed steadfastly by Gettigan's side during the trial which began more than a week ago, said she had worked for Gettigan prior to their marriage.

"I married him," she said, "at his request that we make a home for Mrs. Cook."

Mrs. Gettigan testified in a voice scarcely audible and appeared to be under a heavy strain.

When she was asked about her former husband, John Poquette of Maine, Mrs. Gettigan said that she knew Gettigan while she was Poquette's wife.

One night her husband brought Gettigan slightly wounded, into her kitchen, explaining that he had shot him by mistake "for a coon."

Mrs. Gettigan said that her divorce from Poquette had been absolute for several months before she married her present husband.

PIERCE'S COUNSEL AND FIELDING CONFER

Attorneys Herbert Parker and George L. Mayberry, counsel for Justice Edward P. Pierce of the Supreme Court, were in conference today with Assistant District Attorney Henry P. Fielding relative to the forthcoming trial of Justice Pierce on an indictment charging him with having conspired with W. Edwin Ulmer to deprive the heirs of the late Edmund M. Wood of rights to property left them by Wood. The attorneys declined to make known the nature of the conference, except to state that no time had been fixed for the trial.

MATTAPAN MAN GIVEN ONE YEAR FOR FORGERY

Charged with forging and uttering two checks with which he is alleged to have procured $20 in cash and $25 worth of clothing, Alfred Lockler of Mattapan, convicted by Municipal Judge Murphy, was sentenced today to one year in the House of Correction. Signed H. Cohen and M. Shuraer, respectively, the checks were labeled Hub Trust Company and National Manufacturing Company. Lockler appealed.

Mrs. Constanzo disappeared three months ago and her husband a short time later. The body was head down in the manhole, having been apparently thrown in with some force.

MOTHER DEFENDS MISS LOGUE ON STAND

the organs of the dead nurse, testified that she had died from morphine poisoning.

He said the amount of morphine found in the stomach would indicate that it was not taken through the mouth in tablet form, there being but a trace of it there. In other organs, he said, he found considerable.

His contradicted previous testimony relative to what was a safe dose of morphine, alleging it to be one-eighth of a grain, and not one-quarter or one-half, as previously stated.

Daniel F. Callahan, Woburn druggist, testified to having filled a prescription written by Dr. Stevens calling for twenty morphine tablets. It was filled, he said, on the night of the gathering at the Stevens apartment, December 24.

It was some of these tablets the accused physician contends he gave Grace Logue for her toothache.

Attorney McGillicuddy said he had gone to Dr. Stevens' apartment between 5 and 6 p. m. and had remained an hour or an hour and a half. The door was opened to his ring by Miss Logue and she seemed in good health and spirits, except that she was wearing a bandage about her neck and complained of having suffered all day from an ulcerated tooth and neuralgia. The bandage had some sort of preparation on it, the attorney said. Shortly after his arrival Miss Logue removed it and held it against an electric light bulb as though to heat it. Later she pressed it against her cheek.

Edward McIntyre of No. 59 Pleasant street, Woburn, formerly an employe of Dr. Stevens, told of the interior arrangements of the doctor's apartment. He had slept on a mattress in the main office and Dr. Stevens in a rear room.

Dr. George B. Magrath, medical examiner for Suffolk County, was the first witness to take the stand today, when the trial was resumed in the East Cambridge Superior Criminal Court.

Under cross-examination he told of his examination of the girl's body and of his failure to find any marks that would indicate that she had been a drug addict.

The examination then took a technical turn and the physician was questioned regarding the amount of morphine required to kill a person. He testified that in some cases he had known of less than a grain producing death. In others it required as much as four grains.

He then proceeded to describe the condition of the internal organs of the dead girl, as revealed by the autopsy, and said that her heart showed signs of poisoning.

Dr. Magrath was followed on the stand by Dr. William H. Boos of the Harvard Medical College, who had made an expert examination of the contents of the young woman's stomach and other vital organs.

It is on Dr. Boos' testimony that Assistant District Attorney Blood reopen the investigation will be an important witness. It was through her efforts that her sister's body was exhumed and an analysis made of the vital organs.

Witnesses have testified that Dr. Stevens bought a bottle containing 20 morphine tablets and that he administered a dose of morphine to the young woman when she complained of a toothache. Several of the tablets were missing from the bottle when police searched Dr. Stevens' room after the nurse's body was found.

SLAYER MAY GO BACK TO CELL FOR LIFE

Charges that James F. Elisha, colored, of Roxbury, who was released from the State Prison in 1917, after serving fifteen years for killing his white wife, has since assaulted a white woman with whom he lodged and has threatened the life of another person, were made today in the Pardons Committee of the Governor's Council.

Following his parole, Elisha roomed at the home of Mrs. Ethel Blake, No. 3 Maywood street, Roxbury. She moved to Cunard street, unknown to Elisha, taking some of Elisha's property with her.

Elisha went to the Cunard street dwelling, demanded his property and is accused of assaulting Mrs. Blake and with threatening John H. Connover, who did the moving.

Elisha is back in Charlestown State Prison. The question before the Council is whether his parole will be revoked and whether he will be compelled to serve the life sentence for the murder of his wife. An investigation will be made by the State Department of Corrections of the latest escapade before final sentence is passed by the council.

SOLICITOR EXECUTED FOR MURDER OF WIFE

London, June 1 (By the Associated Press).—Major Herbert Rowse Armstrong, a leading Welsh solicitor, convicted last month on a charge of poisoning his wife, was executed in the Gloucester jail today. He is the first member of the English bar to be executed for murder. Major Armstrong went on trial after the exhumation of his wife's body and the discovery that she had been poisoned.

COURTS MAY TIE UP CLOSED BANK FUNDS 2 YEARS

Attorney-General J. Weston Allen today declared the 75,000 depositors in the closed Boston trust companies will have to wait two years for their tied-up money unless a law is passed by the Legislature to relieve the overcrowded docket of the Supreme Court.

He spoke before the Joint Judiciary Committee in favor of a bill that would allow the court to move up important cases for trial if the cases vitally affect large numbers of citizens.

Both the Supreme and Superior Courts are crowded, Allen said. He said that intricate bank cases which have been filed as a result of the closing of the trust companies seriously complicate the liquidation of the banks.

"These cases cannot be reached and settled for two years, he said, because of the big batch of litigation which now has the right of way. Until these cases are settled by decisions, the depositors will be unable to obtain their final dividends.

Attorney Samuel Child told the committee there are 15,000 cases pending in the Superior Court of Suffolk County alone.

SECOND BATTALION OF FIFTH OFF TOMORROW

The second battalion of the 5th regiment will leave the army base, South Boston, tomorrow morning for Camp Devens. The first battalion left today and the third battalion Monday. Colonel Harry E. Knight and his staff are now stationed for the Summer at Devens. The 7th field artillery from Camp Dix, N. J., with 351 horses, is also at the camp.

Gin Orchard Found in Bearing at Norwell

It was a hot day. Some of the spectators in the court of United States Commissioner Hayes were dozing peacefully.

Another liquor case was on, but that didn't interest them. Federal Court spectators are fed up on liquor cases. It's an everyday occurrence. Can't even raise a thirst. But—

"A gin orchard," rumbled the commissioner in surprise.

"Yes, your honor, a gin orchard. Shook five quarts of gin and three quarts of whiskey out of eight trees."

Everybody in court awoke with a jump.

Two dry sleuths were before Mr. Hayes with three men charged with violating liquor laws. They are Harry W. Sims and Pasquale Catalano, proprietors of the Chittenden Inn, Norwell, and Joe Pilgrim, a colored waiter.

Agents said they found an orchard full of liquor, eight quarts being kept snugly stored in trees from which hollows.

The accused men were held for a hearing on June 3.

REFUSES TO QUASH MORSE CHARGES

Washington, May 31.—Chief Justice McCoy of the District of Columbia Supreme Court today overruled motions to quash indictments against Charles W. Morse, New York banker, and eleven others, charged with conspiracy and embezzlement in connection with the Shipping Board contracts during the war.

SAYS MURPHY EXONERATES ROLLINS

District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien, an assistant and two State doctors, returned today from the Eastern Penitentiary at Philadelphia, where they examined Jesse Murphy, a lifer, who, through a recent confession, exonerated George L. Rollins of the murder of Ordway B. Hall, A. & P. store manager, shot to death on the night of December 24, 1917.

Rollins was convicted of the murder. A legal fight has been going on since to obtain a new trial on the strength of Murphy's confession.

"Murphy told me he did not kill Hall," said District Attorney O'Brien, "but said he knew who did. He exonerated Rollins of the murder an dalso Rollins' brother Charles, serving a life sentence for the killing of Edward T. Foley, also an A. & P. store manager. Murphy said he shot Foley."

Dr. Eugene Kline of the commission on mental diseases and Dr. James V. May of the Boston State Hospital, who accompanied the district attorney, questioned Murphy and will make a report upon his sanity.

CRIPPLES URGE AID FOR VOCATIONAL TRAINING

An appropriation of $10,000 to provide vocational training for the blind and crippled was today urged before the House Ways and Means Committee by a delegation of crippled citizens. William J. Bothwell of Medford, an engineer, who lost one hand and all but the finger and thumb of the other, estimated there are 20,000 crippled persons in the State. Most of them, like Bothwell, are self-supporting, he said.

HEARST GIVES BRITAIN HIS VIEWS ON RELATIONS WITH U. S.

ENGLISH EAGER TO USE THIS NATION FOR THEIR GAIN

By Universal Service.

London, May 31.—The following statement was made by William Randolph Hearst to the Evening Standard, upon his arrival in England:

"I have not been in London for ten years and I shall only be here a few days now. I have come abroad chiefly to give my boys the educational advantages of a European tour and I expect to be back in the United States in time for the opening of their schools in September.

"My fundamental views on Anglo-American relations are that these relations, wherever they exist, should be as plainly beneficial to America as they are to England. My objections to Anglo-American relations are that England usually—I might say almost invariably—wants us to do something for her advantage and against our advantage.

"It may be good statesmanship on the part of England to want to use the United States, but I think it is good statesmanship on our part not to be used.

"The ideals and objects of the United States are very different from the aims and ambitions of England; very different from the plans and purposes of any of the European nations. For this reason it has been the historic policy of the United States to keep free from entangling alliances with European nations. My opinion is simply that this historic policy should be continued. It has proved immensely beneficial to the United States in the past. I firmly believe that it will prove even more beneficial to the United States in the future.

"Please understand that I do not say any of these things unpleasantly or with hostility towards England or the English. I am simply voicing my own honest convictions as to what is best for my own country. I think that in this matter of the unwisdom of foreign alliances my opinion coincides with that of a vast majority of my fellow countrymen.

"Mr. Wilson made his advocacy of the League of Nations an issue of the last presidential campaign and the Democratic party was disastrously defeated on that issue. I feel sure that the Republican party will be as disastrously defeated on its four-power alliance policy. Election preliminaries like the defeat of Senator New, spokesman of the administration, by Mr. Beveridge in the primaries, indicate this very clearly.

"I am in no way entitled to express the opinion of the people of the United States, but I am inclined to believe that our country would have no objection to a co-operative agreement between the English speaking peoples of the world provided the United States stood at the head of that co-operative agreement, and provided the objects of that agreement were the democratic ideals of the United States and not the imperialistic purposes of England.

A WHITE RACE ALLIANCE.

"Personally I would go further and advocate a co-operative agreement among all white peoples to maintain the ideals, the standard of morals and the principles of self-government of white races against any menace from other races who have different ideals, standards and principles.

"To my mind the race question and all that it involves is the one great compelling question of the world today—a question which will become more and more important with each succeeding day.

"You ask me if the late war has not brought England and America closer together. I might say that it has brought England closer to America, but I do not think it has brought America any closer to England. England has a better estimate of the power and importance of America than she ever had before, and England has apparently come this close to America that she is anxious to employ this power in her world schemes.

U. S. GREATEST NATION.

"The people of America, however, as I have said before, are not anxious to see their country so employed. American statesmen who do not realize this are going to learn it, and English statesmen who do not realize it are going to learn it. Perhaps when this lesson has been learned an approach may be made for an understanding between the countries on a different basis.

"I think the United States is far and way the greatest nation in the world today. The late J. Pierpont Morgan said that he had made his fortune by being a bull on America and all things American. That means by understanding the destiny and inevitable development of this greatest nation of ours of 120,000,000 people—A nation as yet only half developed and only half populated.

"The policy of being a bull on America is as advantageous in political matters as it is in financial matters. It applies to international relations also.

MILITARISM OUTGROWN.

"I don't want to see our nation linked up with any nation or combination of nations in which it does not absolutely determine and dictate the policy and procedure. I say this, having not only in mind the welfare of our nation but the welfare of the world.

"I do not think that policies of militarism and imperialism are good for the world. I think the world has outgrown them. We all know it and confessed it during the late war by declaring that we were fighting for democracy. But the war is over and some of the nations are returning to policies which seem of immediate advantage but which will surely be of eventful injury. 'When the devil is sick, the devil a saint would be; but when the devil is well, the devil a saint is he.'

"Some of the professions of democracy of the nations during the war were professions merely, and after the war those nations returned to policies of imperialism and subjugation and exploitation of weaker nations.

"The declaration for democracy on the part of the United States, however, is genuine, is fundamental. Those ideals are inarmined."

BASED ON LIBERTY.

"Our institutions are based on liberty. We are born and brought up in liberty.

"We believe in liberty for ourselves and for all others.

"These policies are the strength of our nation and they will eventually prevail throughout the world. The leader in these principles and policies of liberty and justice should be the leader of the world, will be the leader of the world, and is, as a matter of fact, the leader today.

"Not all Americans realize this, but most of them do. Not all foreign people realize it, but most of them will soon, and the sooner they realize it the better it will be for all, because these policies and principles are for the benefit of all.

"They are the only basis upon which peace and prosperity can be restored and made permanent.

"You ask me if criticisms and attacks on England in the Hearst papers are to be continued? I reply that criticisms and attacks in the Hearst papers are not on England, but on England's policies, which I believe to be misguided, and upon England's disposition to interfere in American affairs to the disadvantage of America.

A JOURNALISTIC DUTY.

"I publish American newspapers for American people. It is my business to the limit of my ability, to safeguard the interests of my own country and my own people. I shall do this as long as I continue to publish my papers, but let me repeat that my criticisms are not based on any hostility to England or the English people, but simply on my desire and determination to perform my own journalistic duty to my own country and my own people.

"You ask me if the future of the world is not dependent upon a continued good understanding between England and America. I reply that this depends entirely upon what that understanding may be, whether it be upon American democratic and altruistic ideals, or upon England's present imperialistic policies. I think I have made this sufficiently clear in what I have said before.

"You ask me if I have anything to say regarding England's indebtedness to the United States and the suggestion as to the cancellation of debts to stabilize world trade. I have nothing to say except that this is a very good example of an attempt of Great Britain and other foreign nations to use the United States to their own advantages and to the disadvantage of the United States.

"It illustrates about what we can look forward to from co-operation with countries which expect us to give everything and receive nothing.

"It makes clear to the average American why we should keep our country free from all political and financial entanglements with foreign nations. It shows why we should maintain our independence and continue business at the old stand and on a business basis.

"You ask me what is the outlook for trade. I prefer not to talk European conditions until after I have made my tour, but business conditions in the United States are improving every day and I am sure that we are at the beginning of a period of very good times. There is little or no unemployment.

"As a matter of fact, in some industries there is already a scarcity of labor."

Mr. Hearst Teaches Moral to Britain, Says Daily News

London, May 3.—Commenting editorially on the statement given by William Randolph Hearst to the Evening Standard, the London Daily News today says:

"To the rather insolent suggestion that the future of the world may depend upon a good understanding between his own country and England, Mr. Hearst retorts with a significant contrast between American democratic and altruistic ideals, and England's imperialistic policies.

"Perhaps the gulf is not so wide as this narrow-minded patriot imagines, but it is important to remember that he speaks with a crude over-emphasis, but nevertheless with an approximation of the truth for a solid bloc of American opinion that still looks at British aims. British mentality with deeprooted suspicion and not a little enmity.

"The moral for us is, that while in all our dealings with the American people we should exhibit a perfect good will and friendliness we should at the same time carefully avoid the tendency recently developed of truckling openly to American sentiment and adopting generally a sycophantic demeanor in our Trans-Atlantic relationships.

"'It is not thus we are convinced that Americans will be persuaded into taking a hand in reordering the world's affairs.'"

SIR JOHN FRASER ATTACKS MR. HEARST'S STATEMENT

London, May 31.—Sir John Foster Fraser today addressed an open letter to the Evening Standard replying to the statement on Anglo-American relations given to that newspaper yesterday by William Randolph Hearst.

In attacking Mr. Hearst's statement, Sir John addressed the following query to the American publisher: "Are you so sure that your bitter nationalism is doing your own country service?"

Sir John Foster Fraser is a traveler, writer and lecturer. In 1898 he was married to Miss Helen Mary Lawrence of Seattle, Wash. He was created a knight in 1917.

SAMMY AND HIS PALS

Copyright, 1922, Star Company.

From the highest peak of Hardluck Mountain the outlook was indeed superb. Yeah, you could see quite a ways. As our old friend Sam was admiring the panorama before him he saw John the Jollier and some other members of the European Hash Hunters' Club climbing up the slope. Raising their voices in a mournful howl, they pulled the following yodel or ballad:

Listen, Sam old lad, to our story sad,
Hoo la la-ee hoo, hoo la la-ee hoo!
At the present time we ain't got a dime,
Hoo la la-ee, la-ee, la-ee hoo!
Won't you lend some dough for a year or so?
Hoo la la-ee hoo, hoo la la-ee hoo!
We will pay next Spring, when the cuckoos sing,
Hoo la la-ee, la-ee, la-ee hoo!

As the last plaintive notes died away, our hero said in a tone of Arctic coldness, "Where do you get that 'Ho la la' stuff? You guys had better move on. You're obstructing the view!"

'SALLY' STAR'S WEDDING BAN CALLED 'ROT'

Reports that Florenz Zeigfeld, producer of the "Follies" and "Sally," objected to Miss Marilyn Miller's reported engagement to Jack Pickford were denied emphatically by Samuel Harrison, manager of "Sally."

A New York report quoted Mr. Zeigfield as saying that if Miss Miller wished to remain at the head of the "Sally" cast she could only do so as Miss Marilyn Miller and not as Mrs. Jack Pickford.

HAS 2-YEAR CONTRACT.

"The report that Mr. Zeigfield has barred Miss Miller's marriage to Pickford is all rot," Mr. Harrison said.

"Such a statement is laughable and there is no truth in it. I say this emphatically as the representative here in Boston of Mr. Ziegfield, and also as the manager of "Sally" of which Miss Miller is the star."

Mr. Harrison said that he had a copy of Miss Miller's contract and there was no line in that forbade the little star from marrying during her engagement with "Sally."

"Miss Miller's contract originally ran for one year," Mr. Harrison said. "A short time ago it was renewed for an additional two years. It now stands. There is no mention of any marriage clause."

MIGHT VIOLATE LAW.

Mr. Harrison declared that Mr. Ziegfield had no more authority to forbid Miss Miller's engagement or marriage than any person in the street.

"I am not sure that a marriage clause would not be against the law," he concluded. "What Miss Miller does or does not do in connection with becoming engaged to or marrying any man is her own personal affairs and Mr. Ziegfield nor any one else has any authority to forbid them."

LOVED MARILYN MILLER FROM THE START

New York, May 31.—Jack Pickford, the movie actor, who is to wed Marilyn Miller, the dancesue, today told of their romance.

"Marilyn and I met in Great Neck, L. I., about one year ago," he said. "It's taken lots of patience to win her. I loved her from the very first minute, and now she says she loved me right away, too. But we are both such very busy people, so I had to woo her by letter, and I kept it up the whole year.

"We are to be married this Summer. Then Marilyn is to go to Chicago with her play and I must hie me to Los Angeles to continue pictures."

Mr. Pickford said it was their sorrow that brought them together. Miss Miller's first husband, Frank Carter, had died and Pickford was mourning the death of his wife, Olive Thomas, who died in Paris.

"I am so proud of my girl. The folks, Mary and ma and Doug, are happy at anything about it, too. So everybody's happy all around."

Bobbed-Hair Girls Are Handicapped in Seeking Jobs

Chicago, May 31.—Bobbed hair and extreme styles are a handicap to the girl seeking employment, H. B. Smith said today. Mr. Smith is director of the National Employment Association which opened its fifth annual convention here today.

"Employers don't want to hire girls who spend too much time on their personal appearance," he said. "The girl with bobbed hair is more liable to stay out late at parties and be unfit for work the next day than is the girl who wears her hair long and dresses modestly."

Demand for "white collar" workers is increasing, H. M. Pollard of St. Louis, president of the organization said.

"We are having a hard time getting really good people to fill positions," he said. "The man or woman who knows how to do any kind of office work need not be out of a job now."

THINK MISSING GIRL IS HEADED TO BOSTON

Mabel Alice Hughes, twenty-one years old, has vanished from the home of her parents, No. 1015 Bedford avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., and is believed to be hiding somewhere in Boston.

She left behind her in Brooklyn a heart-broken mother and a three-months-old baby. The only clue her parents have received, came in the form of a telegram which said that the girl was on her way to this city, and telling them not to worry.

Following the wire, a man in the livery of a chauffeur called at the Brooklyn home and said he had been told by the girl to say she was "never coming home any more."

When Mrs. Hughes received this message her nerves snapped under the strain and the doctors reported today that she is dying of the shock.

This is the fourth time in the past four years that the girl has dropped from sight. She left her home first in August, 1918. Later she returned only to vanish again in July of 1920. In January 1921 she again disappeared.

LAWRENCE MILL MEN DENY COMPROMISE

Lawrence, May 31.—"That there is a possibility of a compromise offer being made by the mills to the strikers, with a view to ending the wage strife, is decidedly untrue," declared a representative of a large mill corporation today. "I would as soon expect to see two suns rise tomorrow morning as I would hope to see any of the mills make a compromise with the workers," he declared.

The talk of a settlement of the great pay battle now being waged by some 45,000 mill operatives in New England textile cities is being nailed as a lie by the mill men. They say it is circulated by labor leaders to revive a deadening spirit. It is pointed out that due to "terrific market conditions," the supposed original cause of the wage cut, the strike cannot possibly end for months to come unless the workers choose to come back at a 20 per cent. wage cut.

"I don't suppose that it would be policy for the newspapers to come out and tell the workers this," said the mill representative, "but they should. I want to characterize these wild stories of the mills giving in as bunk and poor guessing. The Lawrence mills can't make cloth from which worsted suits can be made to sell for $25. I will frankly say that while this 'reworked' wool idea is on in fashion the immediate future of certain large mills looks bad, that is bad from the standpoint of settling this dispute any other way than through a 20 per cent. cut."

Otis Cotton Mills at Ware Fail to Open

Ware, May 31.—The gates of the Otis Company's cotton mills, closed since the strike against a wage cut of 20 per cent. started nearly four months ago, failed to open today, notwithstanding announcement by the company that the mills would resume operations.

Operatives who went to the gates, either to work or to picket intending workers, found notices posted there instead that "because of recent information from large manufacturing cores we have decided not to open this morning." The notices were signed by George E. Tucker, agent, who refused to amplify them later.

At a meeting in the Town Hall later speakers said the company had learned that only a few operatives intended to return and that this was the reason for the decision not to carry out the intention to resume work.

Pawtucket Strikers Have Spent $140,000

Pawtucket, R. I., May 31.—Since the start of the big textile strike twenty weeks ago, $140,000 has been spent in carrying on operations and in relief work, according to a statement today by John J. Thomas, organizer. Labor leaders assert that despite the drain the treasury is still well filled and is capable of bearing its burden even if the strike continues throughout the Summer.

ATTORNEY WEBBER OFF ON HONEYMOON ABROAD

The Cunard liner Samaria was a honeymoon ship when she sailed for Europe today, for she carried among her large list of passengers former Assistant District Attorney Abraham C. Webber and his bride, who was Miss Sylvia Fish of Worcester. The couple were married at the Hotel Somerset, and will make a two months' tour of European countries. Mr. Webber is to address the League of Nations at Geneva on the question of the suppression of opium and narcotics.

Mrs. A. C. Webber

The Rev. Harry Levi of Temple Adath Israel, Commonwealth avenue, officiated at the wedding ceremony. Only immediate members of both families were present. A wedding breakfast was served. The bride is a daughter of Isidor Fish, prominent woolen merchant of Worcester. She is an accomplished violinist. On their return from the honeymoon Mr. Webber will resume his law practice.

Has Anybody Seen This Missing Dorchester Girl

Anna Simon.

Dorchester girl who left her home, No. 48 Wilcox street, five weeks ago after a dispute with her stepmother, ostensibly to seek work, and who has not been seen by her family or friends since.

GIRL LEAVES HOME AFTER DISPUTE

What has become of little Anna Simon, No. 48 Wilcox street, Dorchester?

Five weeks ago she left home one morning saying she was going "to get a job so I can pay my share of the house."

That was the last seen of her. When she failed to return home that night her relatives began seeking her among friends, not one of whom had the faintest idea where the missing girl might be.

Her father, James Simons, employed in a leather jobber's establishment on Scott's court, Charlestown, has spent all his spare time and his money trying to discover some trace of the missing girl.

A dispute with her stepmother, Mrs. Rose Simon, of No. 24 Lorn street, Dorchester, is said to have been the cause of her leaving home.

CITIZENS MEET TO SAVE ELMS

Residents in the vicinity of Fields Corner, Dorchester, held a meeting on the Gibson Playground today to protest against Mayor Curley's plan for cutting down fourteen grand old elms to make room for a concrete grandstand and turning the playground into a ball park.

"This plan of the Mayor's is an outrage," declared F. W. Merrick, member of the Dorchester Board, of Trade and a director in the Universal Improvement Company.

"This playground was given to the city by the Gibson estate. If the mayor's plan is carried into effect it will mean the children will be driven away from the field to make way for semi-professional baseball players.

"This is a distinct denial of the spirit in which the gift was made and I am convinced that the courts would find it so. If the formal protest of the Dorchester Board of Trade and other bodies fails we may ask for an injunction to prevent the ousting of the children and the destruction of the beautiful trees.

"Many fine residences opposite the playgrounds look out on the trees. If the bare concrete wall takes the place of the trees the property will be greatly lowered in value.

FITZPATRICK NAMED TO BOARD OF APPEAL

SOCIETY FOLK SAIL ON THE SAMARIA

The departure today of the Cunard liner Samaria from East Boston for Queenstown and Liverpool proved to be the most brilliant sailing from this port since the Summer of 1914. The big liner went out with nearly 1,200 passenger, nearly all of whom reside in New England.

Boston society was largely represented in the saloon and more than 500 New England Irish-Americans in all three classes sailed for Queenstown for a Summer visit to their old homes. A single "personally conducted" group of more than 300 Irish-Americans sailed in the second and third cabins, the largest group of persons of any nationality that ever sailed from an American port.

"Dock Parson" James A. Burns, the veteran landing agent of the Cunard line in Boston, and Mrs. Burns are in charge of the party. In the old days of unrestricted immigration "Uncle Jimmie" has frequently joined in wedlock as many as six or eight couples in a single day, and scattered throughout the United States and Canada are several hundreds of couples who were married by him on Boston piers and at the old Long Wharf immigration station.

Among the socially prominent who sailed were Timothee Adamowski, the noted violinist, and Mrs. Adamowski, who will spend the Summer on the continent; Mrs. Henry C. Ahlborn of No. 258 Commonwealth avenue, E. Ahlborn and Miss Alice Ahlborn; Mrs. Charles Amory of No. 191 Commonwealth avenue and Mrs. Gerald Bramwell, No. 19 Hereford street.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph G. Crimmins and Thomas A. Crimmins of West Newton sailed for England to spend the Summer with Mrs. Crimmins' parents, Sir Arthur and Lady Chance. The Messrs. Crimmins are Boston wool merchants, as are Burt Moran and John L. Dawson, who also sailed. Charles Storrow, the Boston cotton magnate, and Mrs. Storrow sailed for a combined business and pleasure trip.

Others were Mrs. Robert F. Clark, No. 29 Chestnut street, Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Gardner, No. 342 Beacon street; Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Cabot and Herbert W. Dixon of Boston and West Medway, Mrs. Thomas S. Lockwood and Miss Stackpole, No. 290 Commonwealth avenue. Mrs. Catherine G. Carter of the Hotel Victoria, Mrs. Stuart Todd and child of Marlboro street, W. Hetherington Turnbull and Miss Miss Kathleen Turnbull of Warner circle, Cambridge.

TURKS STARVE GREEK CHILDREN TO DEATH

London, May 31 (By the Associated Press).—A report that Greek children are still being committed by the Turks against the Greeks in the Trebizond district of Asia Minor, Clive Harmsworth, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, told the House of Commons today. EX-POLICE INSPECTOR ANDREW HOUGHTON DIES

On the dawn of Memorial Day, when the memory of his Civil War comrades-in-arms was being honored Andrew Houghton, former police inspector and admiral of the Kearsarge Naval Veterans, died at the home of his niece, Mrs. Marie Houghton Spencer at No. 27 Carruth street, Ashmont. He enlisted in the navy at the age of eighteen when the Civil War first broke out and served until the conclusion of hostilities.

GIRL BITES POLICEMEN IN FIGHTING ARREST

Maddened by wood alcohol in whiskey, a young girl, giving her name as Catherine Sullivan of 1 street, South Boston, attacked two officers who found her behaving strangely at Batavia and Homeward streets, and started to take her to the Back Bay station. She tore their faces with her nails and bit their hands as they tried to subdue her. The officers, Patrolmen Fish and Grimley, were treated at the City Hospital, and the girl was taken there.

CHILDREN NEED 5-CENT FARE, SAY WOMEN

"The campaign for a five-cent fare is one of the first really active steps taken in the direction of a return to normalcy in the matter of legitimate transportation rates.

"The five-cent fare cannot help but have a material effect upon the welfare of the city's children who depend for their very health and existence upon low fares. The low fare is the only connecting link for many of them between hot tenements and streets to the cool of the many beaches and parks in and around the city which are almost inaccessible to many youngsters now because of a ten-cent fare."

This is the plea in behalf of the city's children for a five-cent fare made by Miss Bertha Wesslehoeit Swift, president of the Profession al Woman's Club, the largest and most representative women's organization in the city, representing many hundreds of professional women in the Hub.

WOMEN AID CHILDREN.

Many equally well-known members of the club expressed themselves as being squarely behind Miss Swift's statement.

Miss Dorothy Kent Manners declared that it is the children who must be considered first when any step of public importance is considered and that it is the women of the city who can best represent them.

Mrs. Carrie F. Sheehan, president of the Charlestown Women's Club, stated that the five-cent fare is the only hope this Summer of countless children of the Charlestown district.

"It is hard, of course, for people in comfortable circumstances to appreciate the plight of the city's little children—especially the poorer ones —in the Summer's heat. While many families are able to pack up and leave for the seashore or country when the first hot days come around, the great majority cannot.

"A five-cent fare means the cool and shade of Franklin Park, City Point and the various nearby beaches for these little youngsters when the days become unbearable."

"The return to a five-cent fare spells a much-needed grain of comfort to the mothers of these children, too," adds Mrs. Christina D. Page, one of Boston's best known civic workers.

"I think my association with the class of people in Boston who really need this fare has convinced me of its actual necessity.

"I wish I could make every voter in and around Boston see the plight of girls and women and children when Summer comes.

"Besides the question of the children, a 10-cent fare deprives the small-salaried young girl or boy or adult the privilege of a breath of cool air when the long day in the hot factory or office is over."

NEED LOW FARE NOW.

Two other officers of the Charlestown Women's Club expressed hope that the five-cent fare would be established.

"But we need it this Summer — before July — now!" urges Mrs. Mary E. Geary of No. 63 School street. "If the people of the city would DEMAND that immediate action be taken, the people of the crowded sections—and that means many children—would have the five-cent fare before the hot days."

"I am sure that every thinking woman in the city is behind this movement," declares Mrs. Annie E. Field; certainly every mother is. I cannot see why, when there is such a tremendous united effort on the part of city and suburban working people, there should be any delay on the issue, at all."

Miss Anna T. Steinhauer, of No. 394 Marlboro street, representing the women of the Back Bay district, gets in line with her sisters from every part of the city.

"The women can put the five-cent fare through," she declared confidently. "They've done other bigthings and they can do this. They put Mayor Curley in to start the ball rolling for a five-cent fare and now they're going to stand behind him in pushing the issue all the way through."

COUPLE IN 'MARRIAGE OF LOVE' INQUIRY

(Photo by Interna tional News Reel.)

MR. AND MRS. FRANK MAYO

Film star and his second bride, Dagmar Godowsky. Their wedding last October in Mexico is now alleged to be bigamous.

Artistic residents of Hollywood, famous film colony, are breathlessly waiting the result of the investigation at Los Angeles of the marriage of the famous star, Frank Mayo, to beautiful Dagmar Godowsky, daughter of Leopold Godowsky, piano virtuoso, alleged to be bigamous.

The ceremony which Mayo calls his "marriage of love" was performed in Tia Juana, Mexico, last October, three days after the film star had received an interlocutory decree of divorce from Joyce Eleanor Mayo, whom he married in England in 1913.

Investigation of his marriage was started when authorities began probing the bigamous marriage of Rodolfo Valentino and Winifred Hudnut, daughter of the New York perfumer.

"What will happen to the 'marriage of love'?" ask the filmites.

ELEPHANTS PRESENT 5-CENT FARE PLEAS

Even the elephants are for the five-cent fare. Seven of them, from the Sells-Floto circus, marched on City Hall today and presented Mayor Curley with a five-cent fare petition. The progress of the seven through the city was the occasion for much joy on the part of the small folks, the four-year-old baby animal bringing up the rear proving particularly popular. The Mayor met them at the gate and received the petition, filled out with several hundred names of Boston residents. The original purpose of those back of the stunt was to have the elephants go upstairs into the aldermanic chamber, but on the way, ironically enough, they were frightened when an Elevated train was brought to a stop a few feet away with a great grinding of brakes and wheels.

13 BALLOONS READY FOR RACE TODAY

Milwaukee, May 21 (By the Associated Press).—Thirteen balloons today rugged at their moorings ready to get away in the thirteenth national balloon race which will decide the three entries of the United States in the international contests to be held in Switzerland in August.

The balloons attracting the greatest attention were two naval entries which are not eligible to any of the prize money or honors of victory. These two bags were inflated with helium gas, the first free balloons to navigate the air through the lifting power of this non-inflammable substance.

PICK McKENNA TO BE PROBATION CHIEF

Judges Bishop, Lummus and Flynn, who constituted the commission on probation of the Superior Court, have agreed upon the appointment of Henry C. McKenna as chief probation officer of Suffolk County, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Edwin P. Mulready. Mr. McKenna will take up his duties on June 12. His salary will be $4,500 a year. Mr. McKenna is a lawyer and now is at the head of the Soldiers' Relief in Boston, as the successor to the late John E. Gilman.

WATSON MAKES ANOTHER ATTACK ON HOOVER

Washington, May 21.—(By International News Service).—Charging Secretary of Commerce Hoover with "appropriating $10,000 a month from relief funds for his own personal use," Senator Watson, Democrat, of Georgia created another sensation in the Senate today. Watson renewed his attack on Hoover after Senator Lenroot, Republican, of Wisconsin criticised a denunciation of Hoover made by Watson on May 18. Watson then bitterly denounced Lenroot and was called to order by Vice-President Coolidge.

3 INSANE MEN ESCAPE STATE HOSPITAL

Three men escaped from Boston State Hospital early today and are being sought by police of Boston and surrounding cities.

They are Henry A. Smith, Earl Bennett and Sumner Singleton.

Singelton is at large garbed in a civilian suit of blue, which he managed to procure in some unknown manner. Others are garbed in institutional dress.

All are mildly insane.

How they made their getaway is not known. Their disappearance was not discovered until roll-call this morning.

Here are their descriptions: Smith, 34 years old, five feet three inches, 118 pounds, brown eyes, light hair, left arm tatooed; Bennett, 21 years old, 125 pounds, blue eyes and light hair; Singelton, 38 years old, five feet seven inches, 146 pounds and brown eyes.

New and Slightly Used PIANOS

CUT PRICE SALE

WHEN you want to buy a piano, no matter what make, come here, where selling pianos is reduced to a science to benefit you. Remember this—if I did not sell pianos much lower than others I would not be, as I am, the largest individual piano retailer in New England. Any piano is just as good if bought here as it would be if bought in the warerooms of its maker. These beautiful instruments, acknowledged to be the world's leading makes, are in this sale at prices that startle the piano world and the piano-buying public, because of the fact that the quotations are so low that they seem ridiculous and almost unbelievable.

In comparison with other prices mine certainly do seem foolishly low, and it would seem to the average person that my prices are TOO low—all out of proportion to the value of the instruments. Be that as it may, I will sell at prices quoted and deliver the goods. Sincerely, J. P. COLLINS.

CIRCUS "BEST EVER," SAYS BOY CRITIC

By EDDIE, THE OFFICE BOY.

Gee Whillikens, fellows, what do you think? Yesterday the boss asked me such a darn fool question. He said: "Eddie, do you want to go to the circus?" Can you beat a boss asking a feller that?

Course I told him "Sure" and when he gives me the tickets he told me when I come back I was to write a piece about it.

Well, I got another guy and off we ile for the grounds, up on Huntington avenue just near the Y. M. C. A., and believe me, fellers, it is some circus.

WHAT THEY'VE GOT.

Two fellers named Sells-Floto runs it and they must have been all round the world getting the animals and acts for it, 'cause you can't begin to take it all in at once. They got cowboys and real Indians, Japs and Chinks, lions, ostriches, horses, crocks, 'em and hippopotamus. Oh. Gee! I can't spell it, but you know the things I mean, those great big animals what live half of them on the land and half in the water.

The big show was great. There was about 100 clowns and all sorts of riders and trapeze fellers and girls and they could do most everything. Poodles Hanneford is a clown with red hair but he is the best rider in the world. He has his mother and all his family, six of 'em altogether, and they ride two horses, and oh, boy, they sure do some stuff. When they was all finished, the crowd clapped again.

A REAL WILD WEST

Right after they was through a girl named Bertha Beeson did a lot of stunts up on a wire near the top of the tent. If she had fell there was nothing underneath her only the ground, but she didn't.

Then the Indians and cowboys came in and the cowboys chased the Indians all round the place. They give a regular show called "Buffalo Bill's Wild West" after the rest of the regular circus was through.

The show finished up with a lot of races, guys standing with one foot on one horse and the other foot on another horse. Gee, I though something would happen if one horse went one way and the other in a different way. A little fellow won the race.

Regular cowgirls raced too and there was a Roman chariot race, but I heard a feller say they wasn't regular Romans, cause the only Romans there is now runs shoe shining places and barber shops, but anyway they was great. Some ponies with monkeys for jockeys raced too.

A "NIGHT IN CAIRO."

Oh I forgot the show started off with a big thing called a "Night in Cairo." I was never in Cairo, but my brother, who was in the navy was there once in a ship, and when I told him about the night in Cairo at the circus he sez he never saw no nights like that. Course he didn't cause the night they had at the circus was one what had been over millions of years ago, like the old Egyptians you read about in the Bible.

Other Theatres

ORPHEUM THEATRE—A vaudeville bill, the like of which seldom has been seen at one performance, is presented to patrons of Loew's Orpheum Theatre this week. Kitty Francis, the popular comedian, and a company of eleven in an illustrious offering "Ambition," a musical farce and fashion frolic, with much melody and charm, leads the bill. Others are: Hartley & Jee, Carney & Carr, Jim Reynolds, Herbert & North and Nellie Arnaut & Company. The photoplay feature is Lon Chaney in "The Trap," a tensely dramatic offering with many acute situations.

PARK THEATRE—A picturing of Fannie Hurst's story, "The Good Provider," is now in its second week at the Park Theatre. This famous writer, whose stories of humble family life have won her deserved fame, has never written anything that searches into and arrests the heart so surely as this chronical of the troubles of the humble emigrant who comes to this country to find means to be a good provider.

STATE THEATRE—An unusually well rounded program was shown the patrons of Loew's State Theatre yesterday afternoon and evening. The principal feature was "North of the Rio Grande," co-starring Jack Holt and Bebe Daniels. "Is Matrimony a Failure?" the other feature, is an hilarious farce comedy and deals most thoroughly with the matrimonial question.

GORDON'S OLYMPIA—Because of popular demand Allan Axiom, mind reader and psychic, was held over at Gordon's Olympia Theatre for this week. He was the star attraction yesterday and held the audiences spellbound in wonder at his mystifying achievements.

SCOLLAY SQUARE OLYMPIA—A program that truly offered a great variety of splendid entertainment was presented at Gordon's Scollay Square Olympia Theatre yesterday. There was a long program of vaudeville and a big double feature photoplay program.

GORDON'S CENTRAL SQUARE—Romance and adventure abound in the program presented at Gordon's Central Square Theatre, Cambridge. For today the feature photoplays are, "Reported Missing" and "Bought and Paid For."

GAYETY THEATRE.—"Follies of the Day" began its third big week at the Gayety Theatre Monday with crowded houses at both matinee and evening performances and a long list of seat reservations on record.

SOMERVILLE THEATRE—"Tea For Three" was very well received by two large and enthusiastic audiences at the Somerville Theatre yesterday afternoon and evening.

TENOR AROUSES ENTHUSIASM AT KEITH'S

John Steel, the tenor, who was featured with the Ziegfeld "Follies" for two seasons, is the head liner at Keith's this week. Steel has a lyric tenor voice of rare beauty, and as ease and grace of delivery which is remarkable. He is singing a group of semi-classical and popular songs with splendid effect and the audience yesterday was very enthusiastic.

Ona Munson, a ravishingly pretty little dancer, heads a singing and dancing act which requires six men. The men all sing solo number and dance and work as an ensemble behind Miss Munson. The young lady dances much better than she sings.

Helen Broderick and Lester Crawford have an amusing act. Miss Broderick's dry comedy is well known in legitimate theatres.

Elsa Ryan presented an act called "Peg for Short," which deals with a girl reporter who penetrates the apartment of a famous author who is hard to interview. There were a number of bright lines, but the sketch lacked snap, possibly due to the hopeless personality of the famous author.

Vokes and his dog "Don," once a feature of the "Follies," also got a lot of laughs. Don is a fox terrier whose intelligence and talent for comedy is uncanny. On the whole it was a Summer season bill.

Plays That Remain

PLYMOUTH THEATRE—"Ladies Night" began its last week at the Plymouth on Monday night.

WILBUR THEATRE—"The Last Waltz" continues its long and successful run at the Wilbur.

TREMONT THEATRE — George M. Cohan in his delightful satire on melodram, "The Tavern," began the third week of its Boston engagement at the Tremont Theatre Monday evening.

SELWYN THEATRE — William Courtenay in "Smooth as Silk," entered the last week of his engagement at the Selwyn Theatre Monday night.

COLONIAL THEATRE—Monday night began the sixth week of the record-breaking engagement at the Colonial Theatre of the Ziegfeld musical comedy extraordinary, "Sally," with Marilyn Miller and Leon Errol kind old family bookkeeper.

Mother Is Seeking Trace of Missing Gardner Youth

Carl Dell

Mrs. Carl Dell of Gardner has appealed to the Boston American to help her locate her 16-year-old son Carl, who disappeared from home on May 12. He is about six feet tall, has brown eyes, dark hair, parted in the middle and medium complexion. When he left home he wore a light gray tweed sport suit, brown felt hat and black low shoes.

MOTHER FILM SEEN AT TEMPLE

"Your Best Friend," featuring Vera Gordon, known for her portrayal of mother roles on the screen, had a most auspicious opening at the Tremont Temple Monday night before an audience which filled the Temple to capacity.

The picture is a truly remarkable film and Miss Gordon is shown as the living incarnation of true motherhood who gives and loves and sympathizes with her sons, who does not ask forgiveness for their neglect but rather endeavors always to remain with them in spirit and feeling when its brightest, warmest or otherwise.

"Your Best Friend" is a soul-stirring and marvelous picture play and can truly be classed as an exceptionally delightful cinema attraction.

The cast is a well-rounded one and ably supporting Miss Gordon are Harry Benham as Robert, the eldest son; Stanley Price as the wayward younger son; Nellie Bennett as Aida Robert's wife; Beth Mason, her mother, and Dore Davidson as the

ARCHER CAUSES GEORGE COHAN TO REBEL

George M. Cohan, the author, playwright, actor and producer, not to mention song writer, singer and composer, met Frank Archer, vice-president of the Moxie Company, in the lobby of the Tremont Theatre just after the matinee yesterday.

Mr. Archer was sitting in one of the big blue chairs which once adorned the lobby of the Hotel Knickerbocker, New York, and which were brought to the Tremont Theatre by former Manager Dow.

LOUNGE LIZARD GOLF.

Mr. Archer was playing lounge lizard golf. This game consists of crossing your knees and assuming the top of your foot is a golf ball. You swing at it with the handle of your cane and whenever you miss you set 'em up for the crowd.

"What do you think of "The Tavern?" began the actor.

"I don't know. I haven't seen it yet."

"When are you going to?"

"When does your understudy go on?"

"I haven't any understudy. What are you doing here if you don't look at the show?"

LOOKING FOR COMEDIAN.

"I'm waiting until I can find as good a comedian as you are."

"Then it'll never be put on," declared Mr. Archer, solemnly. "How did you like the article I wrote about you in Monday's papers?"

"It wasn't complimentary enough. And I haven't worn a straw hat like the one you had me wearing in your advertisement since Hector was a pup."

"I was afraid you might like it," said Mr. Archer. "Now I'm satisfied I'll go write another ad."

WALDRON'S CASINO. — Fun that was typical of French music halls and theatres was presented to delighted audiences at Waldron's Casino yesterday when "The French Follies" was offered as the feature of the big three-in-one continuous performances.

NATIONAL THEATRE.—Motion picture fans are flocking in various numbers to the National Theatre on Tremont street, near Berkeley, which is re-opened, offering a continuous policy with a daily change in program. This bill comprises two selected feature film productions of superlative quality.

"Sky Pilots" Wanted in Lumber Camps of Northwest

"We want sky pilots for the lumber camps of Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan," is the appeal sent to New England ministers through Ralph Welles Keeler of the Home Missions Council, who thinks that there are many in this section of the country who would be willing to spend a couple of years in this kind of missionary work.

"It is a rough job," adds Mr. Keeler. "It is an experience that tends to develop a sort of 'agin the powers that be' attitude towards the lumber operators and the general public alike."

Application for such a position should be made to the Home Missions Council, No. 740 Rush street, Chicago.

3 TRUNKS FULL OF LIQUOR ARE SEIZED

Providence, June 1.—Federal prohibition agents under the direction of Prohibition Director Edward I. Dunn, confiscated eighteen cases of liquor found today in three trunks taken from the New York train that pulled into Providence at 2 a. m.

The trunks were hauled from the train to the baggage room, where the prohibition agents were lying in wait. Soon afterwards a man drove up with a motor truck, called for the trunks, loaded them on to his vehicle and carted them to East avenue and Main street, Pawtucket. The Federal agents were close behind.

There was nobody there to meet the driver of the truck, so he turned around and started back to Providence. When he arrived here Director Dunn and his men seized the trunks. When opened, the agents found ten cases of Bacardi rum and eight cases of gin. The driver of the truck was released.

VOTE TO REPORT FAVORABLY ON BONUS BILL

Washington, May 31 (By International News Service).—Ending the long stagnation that has existed in the bonus situation the powerful Senate Finance Committee today voted 9 to 4 to report favorably the McCumber bonus bill to the Senate and press for early passage.

The four who voted against reporting the measure were Republicans, Calder, of New York; Frelinghuysen, of New Jersey; Smoot, of Utah, and Dillingham, of Vermont. The first two are candidates for re-election this year.

The Democrats on the committee, three in number, joined with the six majority Republicans in forcing the bill out. Those voting for reporting the bill were:

Republicans—McCumber of North Dakota, Curtis of Kansas, Watson of Indiana, La Follette of Wisconsin, Sutherland of West Virginia, and McClean of Connecticut.

Democrats—Gerry of Rhode Island, Walsh of Massachusetts and Simmons of North Carolina.

The McCumber bill differs in many respects from the bill that passed the House some weeks ago.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON BOSTON SOCIETY

MISS ELEONORA SEARS
(Photo by Marceau.)
Miss Eleonora Sears of Boston and the North Shore, who plans to return from Europe around the first of July.

By BETTY ALDEN.

SOME time ago there was much talk and a good deal of fuss because Eleonora Sears sold her horses, for the well-known society-sportswoman had won countless blue ribbons with her thoroughbreds.

However, the famous "Eleo"—as she is known to her many friends—did not part with all of her hundred mounts. She is still in the possession of a number of horses, which are kept in the stable of Mrs. John Caswell's place at Pride's Crossing.

Just at present Miss Sears is abroad. She is spending the Spring and early Summer with some friends in the south of France, planning to return to the North Shore early in July, I believe. Apropos of Miss Sears and her horses, members of the exclusive contingent along the Shore are missing a familiar sight and sound these days, for when "Eleo" is on the Shore she spends much of her time driving smartly behind a pair of her steeds, and as the latter have bells on their harnesses—not on their toes—their comings and goings were well heralded.

Speaking of the Caswell place, Mrs. Caswell and her very pretty daughter, Elizabeth Caswell, have arrived there to spend a portion of the hot season anyway, for later in the Summer—probably the beginning of August—Harold Vanderbilt is coming on from New York to take possession of the estate for the remainder of the season.

Fox terriers, particularly wire-haired ones, are one of the most popular breeds just now, and not a few members of the fashionable contingent are keenly interested in the breeding of these dogs, so that a goodly representation of society folk is expected at the show.

The Hon. Joseph Russell, a member of the Canadian Parliament, is coming all the way from Toronto to act as judge at the exhibit. Members of the Bench Show committee include Quincy A. Shaw McKean, Homer Gage, Jr., James W. Spring and Miss Jean G. Hinckle. Mr. T. E. L. Kemp of Bridgewater is superintendent and show secretary.

I understand that blue-blooded dogs are coming all the way across the continent for the show. Those in charge announced that motor trucks will meet the Monday morning train and will be at hand to take back to Boston all dogs which may fail to make the late afternoon train. Smooth fox terriers will be judged before, and wire-haired fox terriers, as well as all special prizes, after luncheon, which will be served on the grounds.

THE "flapper pump" is said to be quite the latest thing in feminine footgear, and we are wondering whether or not members of the exclusive colony along the North Shore are going to adopt it. Time alone will tell.

At any rate, the "flapper pump"—poor flappers, everything the least bit "freakish" is blamed on them—consists of the tongue of low slippers rolled over toward the shoe tip, with the initials of the wearer worked on the upper surface in gold or silver thread. The aforesaid addition to Milady's wardrobe was introduced recently at a large Spring and Summer resort, the introduction being made, I understand, by a Boston miss.

It's a bit early to note any fads or foibles along our own North Shore, for the Summer colony there is not yet complete, but it will not be long before Dame Society and her friends will take up one or more fads of various sorts.

SPEAKING of fashions, there is no doubt that the most attractive effects may be secured through combinations of black and white. Monday I encountered Miss Frances Clark in the shopping district, and she was most modishly gowned in a black crepe de chine gown with touches of white and a black and white hat.

Miss Clark, who is the daughter of Mrs. Homer Richardson of Marlboro street, was well-guarded on her shopping tour by two faithful dogs, the one a wire-haired white Scotch terrier and the other a fluffy tan-colored "Pom." Miss Clark has assisted at numerous functions given this Winter by the smart set.

BROCKTON MAN'S NAME WAS USED BY MISTAKE

Through a mistake the Boston American on Saturday stated that a store raided at No. 249 Montello street, Brockton, was leased by Epstein & Gindin, leather heel manufacturers.

The raid was made by police looking for illicit liquor.

It was not leased by Epstein & Gindin, but by Epstein & Dinin.

The correction is made because 200 feet from where the raid occurred Abraham Gindin conducts a wholesale tobacco business. He had absolutely no connection with the raid.

6,000,000 STARVING IN ONE CHINESE AREA

Shanghai, China, May 31.—Six million people out of a population of 27,000,000, in the province of Hunan are starving and hundreds of thousands are certain to die before mid-Summer, according to estimates mission workers there. Thousands have died in the fields by the roadsides. The bodies of the dead are stripped by the emaciated survivors and the pitiful rags that clothed the corpses sold for a few brass coins to buy a handful of rice. In one part of the famine belt, cannibalism is being practiced, according to Ma Ling-Yi, former minister of Education at Peking.

Dr. Jelly had just started an oil stove to cook breakfast and went down cellar. An explosion of the stove set fire to the beautiful estate, spread to the cottage owned by Atherton Shepard of Brookline, and was totally destroyed, causing an estimated loss on the building and its contents of $12,000.

Dr. Jelly was burned slightly about face and neck; August Winterread, twenty years old, was seriously burned about the body and is at the Addison Gilbert Hospital.

Ernest H. Griffin, who was assisting in trying to extinguish the flame with the department, was hurled through a door by an explosion of hot air, and badly injured.

He was burned about the head and one arm, while the other arm was badly cut by flying glass.

Mrs. Susan Jelly, wife of Dr. Jelly rushed from her room on the second story through the flames to safety. The Jelly residence is considered one of the show places of the Annisquam Summer colony.

GLASS, BLAMED IN SHOOTING, STILL IN HUB

Louis H. Glass.

Louis H. Glass, who was arrested last week charged with shooting Thomas Conroy of the West End, had not left Boston as was reported in a Boston paper a few days ago. When arraigned in Municipal Court, Glass was released on $6,000 bail.

"It is all a lie," said Glass. "I have not left Boston and never did leave Boston. That is merely a story designed to injure me in the eyes of the police. I am here and will stay.

"As a matter of fact the whole business is nothing but lies and as for my running away to Providence after the alleged shooting I did nothing of the sort. I was in my own house when I was arrested. I had been playing cards all evening. I had nothing to run away for, because I did not shoot him."

HARDING IS INTERVIEWED BY BOY REPORTER

The Boston American takes pleasure today in presenting to the people of Boston and New England, especially the boys, the first of the remarkable series of interviews with Warren G. Harding, President of the United States, and other men of national prominence obtained by Horace Wade, the world's youngest author and newspaper reporter.

Horace Wade does more than write. He is gifted with the rare capabilities to "tell." He is going to "tell" you now about President Harding, the boy as well as the President, and he is going to tell later about his interviews with William R. Hearst, Mayor Hylan of New York and others. Here is the interview with the President of the United States.

By HORACE WADE.

Eleven-Year-Old Author of "In the Shadow of Great Peril" and Other Novels, Who Writes Exclusively for the Boston American.

(Copyright, 1922.)

"Take the message to Garcia," said the city editor to me at Chicago, and I never saw an owl look so solemn. "Horace," he continued in measured tones, the shadows on his thought-eaten face deepening, "this is one occasion when you've got to get down to brass tacks—got to rise to a great occasion.

"I want you to go to Washington as the representative of twenty million American boys and find out whether a boy must carry water for the elephants in the U. S. G. O. P. elephant in order to get free board at the White House for four years," he added to himself while I went off in a trance.

My mind was crowded to overflowing with memories of my history as I entered the wide doors of the White House and waited to be ushered into the presence of Warren G. Harding and to find out first hand what a boy must do to become President.

A KINDLY FACE.

Then my good friend, Secretary of Labor Davis, brought me into Mr. Harding's rooms, where I met the President, dressed in a blue suit. My, but he has a kindly face, and when I looked into it and caught the sunshine that played about the corners of his mouth and then raced toward his blue eyes, where it reappeared in a merry, merry twinkle, I could strip off those extra pounds and those needless inches and see him as he really is—a great, big boy—just as full of fun as a school boy when the hands on the clock point to the hour of 3 and he goes scampering away, yelling and hollering like a Comanche Indian to the baseball diamond, 'longside the old swimin' hole.

He has a broad, open face—the kindest I ever saw—and I found then why he had been elected President. His hair is white as snow and falls in straggling locks over his high forehead. And say, fellers, as I sat there in the President's chair, which stands at his Cabinet table, I got a sneaky notion that my good friend Warren G. slipped behind a fence down there in Ohio and swiped somebody's rosy June apples and it's dollars to doughnuts that he tied many a can to a dog's tail.

DID HE PLAY HOOKEY?

"Mr. President," I said, "Did you ever go to the 'ole swimmin' pool down home?"

"Did I," he laughed, "hundreds of times, and oh, Horace, you haven't any idea how cool it felt. Them were the days."

"And did you ever play hookey?" I went on, my pencil racing over my paper.

The president smiled again. "I guarantee," he said, "that every single boy in the United States has played hookey at least once. I don't profess to be an angel, so don't you think I ought to have, also? Horace, have you ever committed it?"

"I decline to give evidence against myself." I smiled back at him, "but tell me, Mr. President, must a boy carry water to the elephants to become President?"

IT TAKES HARD WORK.

Mr. Harding hesitated, then exclaimed:

Horace, it takes hard work to achieve fame or success. It takes hard work to get into the circus by carrying water to the elephants. Just as it takes hard work to become President of the United States. My motto is work, work hard."

Next I started to enquire whether he had robbed bird nests, but as I glanced at his face, I knew that such a kindly man could never commit harm to a bird.

"Horace," went on the President, "tell the boys of America that I'm still a boy and love the sports boys love. I was quite like they were when I was small, only a little bit worse."

When next I asked him to give a message for the boys and girls on how to become President,

"A FINE START."

"Work hard and conscientiously," was his reply. "You've had a fine start, Horace, towards my job—as a newspaper reporter. After all I'd rather be a newspaperman than a President of the United States."

I was just getting up to leave when a sudden inspiration gripped me. "Mr. Harding," I said, "did you ever tie a tin can to a dog's tail?"

I waited for a second for his answer and just then in trampled Laddie Boy, the first dog of the land. Big and brave, he certainly was worthy of the choice.

Laddie Boy ran up to the President who patted him kindly on the head and said, "I want to say to you that in all my life I've never harmed a person or a brute. I couldn't tie a can to a dog's tail."

Then I left with many misgivings. He owes regrets when he'll become so old that he can't join in the romps with other fellows. And he's the best and kindest President we've had in years. So when I say, "Hurrah for Harding," can you blame me?

Horace Wade's interview with William Randolph Hearst will be published on Thursday.

SEN. CAPPER PRESENTS NEW GRAIN BILL

By International News Service.

Washington, May 31.—Senator Capper of Kansas, chairman of the Senate "agricultural bloc," started after the "grain gamblers' seats today by introducing a bill in the Senate which he believed would meet the recent United States Supreme Court decision holding the Capper-Tincher grain futures law unconstitutional.

"The grain exchanges bitterly opposed the provision of the law which compelled them to admit co-operative associations to membership," said Senator Capper. "This provision is retained in the new bill in a way to make it clear that with the exception of the privileges accorded bona fide of operation co-operative associations of producers are subject to the same conditions as other members of the grain exchanges and the boards of trade."

Senator Capper pointed out the grain "futures" are not in themselves "interstate commerce," but "also clearly subsidiary if the transactions on the future exchanges result in or directly cause obstruction to or undue burden upon interstate commerce Congress may act."

POSTAL MEN TO FIGHT FOR SHORTER TOURS

Expressing the hope that Boston may now get some relief in the matter of long-hour postal workers' schedules and the elimination of excessive night work, John A. Kelly of Boston Local No. 100, National Federation of Postoffice Clerks, referred to President Harding's decision for a "real enforcement of the eight-hour day" in the postoffices of the country. The address was delivered at a meeting of the executive board of the local.

WOMEN REFUS TO OBEY THE WORK LAW

Sofia, May 31 (By the Associated Press).—Premier Stamboulisky, addressing the Bulgarian Peasant Congress advocated the arrest and punishment of young women refusing to obey the new law, which went into effect on May 1, requiring them to work for the government gratis four months out of each year.

Under this law, girls between the ages of sixteen and twenty, daughters of bourgeois citizens of Varna and Sofia, are required to work, but only 100 have thus far complied and they are doing sewing, typing and hospital work.

Those who have refused to comply argue they are either under or above the stipulated ages, or that they are about to be married, one of the exemptions allowed.

The Premier proposed that the law be given to only those women who work and earn their own living.

A warning to the Bulgarian bourgeoisie that rule by the peasantry is now an actuality was given by the Premier.

"Bulgaria today is the friend of true Germans and Russia," he said, "and the brothers have been allied with anybody except those nations who signed the Genoa non-aggression pact."

The American Legation is under a heavy guard of sailors and soldiers, owing to the numerous threats received by the Minister, Charles S. Wilson.

Girl Says Her Body Contains Old Egyptian Queen's Spirit

Antinea, Who Predates the Pharaohs, Brings Message of Freedom to Boston Women.

If you read "Bunker Bean" then you'll be interested in meeting Antinea.

Antinea was an Egyptian queen back in the days when Pharaoh's grandfather was in short pants and wading in the Nile. Antinea should be a dusty mummy safely tucked in her funeral wrappings back in the land of Scarabs. But it seems she's still with us. She's here in Boston, her spirit being lodged in an English girl who will lecture to Boston women this week on the Common.

Antinea is interested in the freedom of her sex. Speaking through the lady from England she will tell all the Boston women who care to hear that their sex is powerful and should be liberated.

The lady from England is stopping at the Copley-Plaza. She is registered as Antinea and you can't blame her for that. If one carries a queen's spirit around they ought to have liberty.

Today she received a Boston American reporter and admitted that the modern woman is nearer Eve in dress than Egypt.

"Flappers, bobbed hair, cigarettes and so forth, are but the expression of the sex on the road to its freedom," says Antinea. "They are the first chirp of the imprisoned bird struggling out of its cage. Antinea, were she living today, would give them her unqualified approval."

"Man glories in his sex triumphs," she exclaimed. "Woman should glory in hers and not struggle to disguise her exultation as she does. The rules of society have placed women in a love-prison. All that she is capable of is limited to one man, and if he is not worthy of it or responsive she must continue to plant her seeds in arid soil. Antinea wants women released from the love-prison. Woman's power of sex freely employed can bring the world more good than all of man's brain and ability."

LIKES OPEN-AIR TALKING.

The young woman who exemplifies the spirit of Antinea intends to tour the world with this message to woman. She is doing it at her own expense, she says. She likes to lecture in the open air.

"I want to talk with the people under the stars, near to nature, for the people can absorb things better than when they are cooped up in a hall or room," said Antinea.

She told the reporter that whenever she is asked to give a lecture in private, she does so with the understanding that there must be no admission fee charged.

"Antinea had twenty-five husbands" said the young woman. "If the women of today had that record I am afraid people would say she was a creature of some kind, or to use the more familiar term—an immoral woman."

Antinea's spirit was dressed like an Egyptian queen, in pale blue satin, very much decolete. Her hair ornaments of pearls aded to the Oriental atmosphere of the picture. In the language of the street, the Egyptian queens famed for their beauty "had nothing on her."

IS NO IMMORALITY.

"There is no such thing as immorality" she continued, "There never will be when women come to understand that she is the superior of man in being. A woman can get anything with her sex power, if she will use discretion.

"This is what I say. A woman has the power of everything. When the woman herself awakens and finds herself, she will agree with the message from Antinea."

The present-day Antinea told the reporter that five years ago, when she was living with her mother in London, something came over her. "I began to feel that I had been reborn," said she. "My family didn't understand me.

"I began to talk about Antinea. All the time I had these thoughts running through my mind. My mother listened. I began to realize that some great spirit had been placed in my body. I didn't realize for a year afterwards that Antinea was a queen. My father had spent the most of his life delving into the things of the Orient, especially of Egypt."

FOR WOMEN'S LEGISLATURE.

Antinea hopes to be able to form here "a legislature of women" to take up the matter of illegitimate children. "Why should such a child have the snuroh of the father an the mother upon it?" she asked. "The mother and the father are the ones who ought to suffer. My talks in England and in New York have no been in vain. Women in New York have formed clubs to keep up the theory of Antinea.

"My work in this world is not for money, it is for an idea and an ideal of a perfect womanhood."

Antinea says she doesn't ask for nor receive any financial aid from any organization, or from anybody, and that she is bearing all the expense of her lectures and travels.

"When woman has ful knowledge of herself, there never will be illegitimate children" she said in closing the interview.

"Turnover" Is Very Slow:

IN many kinds of private business, such as successful stores, the total income from sales during a year (turnover) equals from 5 to 7 times the capital invested.

The investment, therefore, can be small.

In public utilities, like the Edison Company, the income from sales of electricity during a year (turnover) equals only ¼ to ⅓ of the capital invested.

The investment, therefore, must be 25 to 50 times as great as in a private business enterprise.

RUNAWAY WIFE BOLDLY ADMITS ILLICIT LOVE

Mrs. Frank P. Chute, runaway wife of Neponset, unashamedly avowed greater love for the man with whom she was living at Norfolk, Va., and unhesitatingly confessed to her relations with him when both were arraigned in the district court of that city on telegraphic charges of the Boston police.

The man for whom Mrs. Chute deserted her husband at No. 10 Chickatawbut street several weeks ago is Richard Woomer of Philadelphia, who is said to have been a crack gunner on the battleship New Mexico.

The couple were living as man and wife on Gibbs avenue at Norfolk. With Mrs. Chute was her nine-year-old daughter, Marian. Mrs. Chute is thirty-two years old and is also charged with kidnaping the girl.

Both were fined $20 and are being held for the Federal authorities on a charge of violating the White Slave Act.

After leaving Neponset, Mrs. Chute was trailed to Portland, Me., where trace of her was lost for some time. Her husband has renounced her, according to the police, but wants the child, who is temporarily in a home.

ALLIES APPROVE BERLIN'S NOTE

Paris, May 31.—The Inter-allied Reparations Commission has pronounced Germany's indemnity note satisfactory and will proceed at once to put into effect the demands which Germany accepted, the Echo de Paris stated today.

CLASH AT HOOVER COAL MEETING

Washington, May 31 (By the International News Service).—Secretary of Commerce Hoover met here today with several hundred producing bituminous operators to attempt fixing a uniform price for coal at the mines to prevent gouging and profiteering. Representatives of retail coal dealers declared the operators had gotten together before meeting and reached an agreement to hold out for $3 a ton as a minimum.

"This is too high," said L. W. Ferguson of Chicago, representing the retailers. "At least half a million tons of high grade coal has been contracted for delivery before March, 1923, at around $1.75 a ton, and we will interpose most serious objections to any movement tending to abrogate these contracts."

$500,000 WILL FIGHT OPENED BY FITCH

A fight over the $500,000 estate left by Benjamin Fitch, former Faneuil Hall Market merchant, began before Judge Flynn and a jury in the First Cambridge Superior court today.

The contestants is Arthur Fitch of Lexington, son of the merchant. The respondents are Mrs. Elizabeth W. Fitch, second wife of Benjamin Fitch, and Miss Mary Fitch, a daughter.

Mr. Fitch, who is represented by Attorneys Sherman L. Whipple, Leon I. Fiske and Jesse Gove, charges the stepmother and sister with having undue influence the making and of said has father's will and that has father was not of sound mind when he signed the document.

The will, which was executed in 1916, leaves the bulk of the estate to Mrs. Fitch, with $5,000 for the daughter but cuts off the son with the income from a fund of $5,000.

The respondents are represented by Attorneys William Flaherty and Louis Lakoff.

CLAIMS OF LAWYER.

In opening the case for the contestant Attorney Feeney said:

"At the time of the signing of the will and Mr Fitch's "the proof will show that Mr. Fitch was a man who was that has illness had been red hot and as well as his mind. He was so helpless as a child and that was unable to decide for himself any matter even of the slightest nature or to say what was being done for or to him.

"During the years that immediately preceded the death of the mer chant who was eighty years old when the will was signed Mr Feeney declared the stepmother and daughter did not permit the son to come near the father.

The sole the gift Mrs Fitch seems to have had in those years was to keep her grip on things and not let the young man as far as possible from the old one.

Mr Fitch was never allowed to be alone for a moment. Wherever he went there went either the daughter or the second wife, Arthur, the son. The boy who had never had a quarrel with his father, the son who was the apple of the old man's eye became became completely under the domination of the two women and virtually told he was not wanted in the home of his father.

DELAY IN NOTICE.

"Even in death this barrier was not lowered. Arthur Fitch did not learn of the death of his father until the following day. Then he received a cold, formal letter from his stepmother, telling him that his father had passed away. And that despite the fact that Arthur Fitch's home in Lexington is less than three minutes walk from the house in which the old man died.

"And the magnanimity of the two women persisted after death. At the funeral Arthur was treated as a stranger. He was told where to sit. He was not allowed near his sister or his step-mother."

Mildred Harris

According to friends of the couple, the romance has flourished since Munson obtained an annulment of his marriage to his second wife, Mrs. Gwendolyn Otis, in Los Angeles in 1921. Immediately after the annulment the two film favorites were often together in Los Angeles and Hollywood.

CHILD SLAYER A SUICIDE, IS BELIEF

Fall River, May 31.—Westport police and large possees of citizens are scouring the woods and swamps near North Watuppa Pond in the search for Waldo Purley, who murdered Josephine, one of his children, and narrowly attacked his wife and three other children.

Waldo Purley

At the City Hospital physicians held out no hope for the recovery of Amelia, aged seven, and Louis, aged three. Their skulls have been fractured. The eldest boy, Stanley, and his mother have a fair chance to recover, the doctors say, though their condition is extremely critical.

Police only entertain faint hope of capturing Purley alive. They believe he ran off into the woods after the tragedy and took his own life.

KING GEORGE V. BRINGS SUIT IN BOSTON

Comes now His Majesty George the Fifth, King of England into Suffolk Superior Court, demanding justice.

His royal claim involves $15,000. A bill in equity, brought in the name of the King for the Canadian Government Railways was filed in Superior Court today, asking that a receiver be appointed for the Prince Edward Island Railway Company.

The Canadian government says it was a silent partner in the company, the other partner being Ann Prince Edward Island.

The suit which was the only property of the company has been wrecked and sold as a derelict and the Indian wants to recover on the insurance money and which the officers of the company say was needed to pay a deficit of $5,000.

Because of the international nature of the suit it was filed in the Massachusetts courts, although Canadian railroad men are the ones who seek the receiver.

"NORTH OF RIO GRANDE"
Famous Players-Lasky

Bob..... Jack Holt
Val.....Bebe Daniels
Father Hilliaire...Alec Francis
Col. Haddington..Charles Ogle
John Hannon....Will Walling
Lolita.....Shannon Day
Brideman.....Jack Carlyle
Story by Angie E. Roe.
Scenario by Will Ritchey. Directed by Joseph Henaberry.

"NORTH of the Rio Grande" is all glorious scenery, Jack Holt, and riding. These three popular features would put over the most banal story—and that's what they do in that film at the State Theatre this week. Holt has a distinct individuality and fills a long-felt want on the screen; mainly sincerity. Bebe Daniels is in it, too, but is a misfit.

The story is largely hokum and after the point where Holt decides not to kill his enemy because he turns out to be Val's father, it grows more aimless and wanders from the point.

At any rate, the mountains are at no time a disappointment. Neither is the riding. Much of the time it is impossible to know just why everyone is galloping madly, but the very enthusiasm with which they ride saves the occasion. Miss Daniels is, obviously, not an actress, but she is highly attractive and handles a horse well.

The companion picture on the bill, "Is Matrimony a Failure?" has a novel idea behind it, but sags in the middle. Lila Lee and T. Roy Barnes head a splendid cast.

EDITH ROBERTS CAST.

NONE other than Edith Roberts is appearing in the next Thomas H. Ince film, "The Sunshine Trail," in which Douglas McLean has the leading role. James Horne is directing the production under the personal supervision of Mr. Ince.

LAURETTE TAYLOR FOR PEG.

THE NEWS that Metro will sponsor the production of J. Hartley Manners' comedy, "Peg O' My Heart," with Laurette Taylor in her original role of Peg, is causing much comment along film row.

Some years ago this story was made by Famous Players, with Thomas Meighan and Wanda Hawley in the leading roles, and the film is said to have been a remarkably good one. Manners, however, said they were not authorized to film his play and the court forbade it being released. The Metro version is being made with the consent of Mr. Manners, naturally, since his wife is to appear in it. It is probable that Fred Niblo or Rex Ingram will direct it.

ANOTHER HOLLYWOOD SCANDAL.

THE film colony of Hollywood is buzzing with a new scandal, which this time drags Jackie Coogan into the limelight. Miss Patsy Marks, aged seven, of Los Angeles, has announced that she is "definitely off" young Mr. Coogan, because one Miss Alma Lloyd, aged seven, daughter of director Frank Lloyd, has been seen in the star's company a great deal of late.

Miss Lloyd made her film debut in Jackie Coogan's newest picture, "Trouble," and Jackie was heard to remark that she could be his leading lady any old time she wanted to. That started the "trouble."

NEW ONE FOR WALLIE

WHEN Wallace Reid starts work on his next production, "The Ghost Breaker," under Lila Lee will be his leading woman the direction of Alfred Green, an. Walter Hiers will be seen in a negro role, while Arthur Carewe, J. F. MacDonald and Helen Dunbar are also in the company.

UNOFFICIAL.

WHEN Gloria Swanson arrived in London during her vacation tour Punch made rather a neat jest about her. It spoke of the fact that she reached England on Monday after a rough voyage, but it is understood that there is no truth in the report that she cabled home the following message:

"Sick transit. Gloria Monday."

BARTHELMESS AND HERGESHEIMER.

WHILE Dick Barthelmess was a member of the Griffith company he was constantly singing the praises of Joseph Hergesheimer. When he became a star he made a point of showing how well his favorite author's work filmed. Now, it is rumored, that the writer has been closeted with Barthelmess recently and signs point to further collaboration between these two. At any rate, it can't be "Cytherea."

RUPERT HUGHES' GREATEST NOVEL

THE STORY SO FAR

DESTINY had built savagery with beautiful young Remember Steddon daughter of a Massachusetts clergyman. She had given her heart to Edward Emerson, a man whom she sang in the choir and he was about to marry her, using the sole support of his crippled father, a large farm. Dr. Broderick discovers there is reason for a marriage but while he is urging this on the girl Edwood is fatally injured in an automobile accident. Elwood dies and Dr. Broderick goes to tell Remember's parents. She goes to California by his advice and meets prominent Movie people in the train. The train is early wrecked by an accident to the locomotive and has to stop in the desert. There Mem gets acquainted with Tim Mc... Dr. Galbraith

SHE threw caution aside and [illegible] Perhaps it really was the [illegible] of inconsequence. The Letter

Mr. Emerson Memorial Church [illegible] Well you can imagine [illegible] consent to her coming [illegible] to [illegible] Dear Mr. Broderick: [illegible] of [illegible] Woodville, General Delivery, Yuma. Doesn't it sound grand, though?

But he is such a fine man and noble hearts are better than coinages as the poet [illegible] study to be a help to him and some day we will pay back [illegible] money I have taken away for you poor darlings.

Well, I must close for the present. Don't stop loving me, just because I have a husband. But send us your blessings

FINANCE —AND— BUSINESS

By B. C. Forbes

Which is the safest form of robbery?

Selling worthless stocks to unsuspecting victims.

The newspapers this week announce the arrest in Pittsburgh of twenty-three men about to launch a stock-selling campaign calculated to "clean up" a million dollars or more, according to the detectives. More than 10,000 "prospects" were on their lists, ready to be fleeced. One of the men is reported to have declared that the same scheme had been worked successfully elsewhere that he had pocketed as much as $5,000 in one day.

Instead of merely railing against the evil, however, it will be more useful to suggest remedies.

I recently learned that Florida has achieved notable success in ridding the State of such crooks, and that this work had been directed mainly by Charles A. Fairchild, president of the Tampa Clearing House Association. From the information gathered from Mr. Fairchild it would be fairly safe to say that 99 per cent. of the spurious stocks that are purchased each year by the unwary and uninformed investors of the United States would not be purchased if all the banks and clearing house associations would begin an active campaign through the Clearing House section of the American Bankers' Association to exterminate the evil.

Mr. Fairchild declared:

"At the next session of the Florida Legislature the Bankers' Association will endeavor to have enacted more drastic 'Blue Sky' laws, providing, among other things:

"First—That a permit shall not be issued to any one to sell stock in Florida who has not been a legal voter for a period of at least three years preceding the date of application for permit.

"Second—That a questionnaire must be filed with the State authorities, setting up every detail of the proposed plan, including organization expenses, etc., and said questionnaire must be sworn to by every person to whom the stock is offered, an adequate bond to be made to the State to guarantee compliance with the law.

"Third—That no permit shall be granted to any one to sell stocks on which a greater commission than 10 per cent. is paid.

"Our efforts should be more of a help than a hindrance to legitimate offerings of securities. We do not mind stating plainly, after investigation of a proposition that has proved worthy, that our investigation has failed to uncover anything of an unfavorable nature."

Spectacular Advances Feature Active Market; Call Money Goes Up to 5%

NEW HIGHS ARE SET UP IN N. Y. TRADING

Spectacular advances featured an active market to which the brakes were applied when call money finally advanced to 5 per cent.

In the meantime several new records and highs had been set up, and the weakest issues were those adversely affected by recent court decisions.

Republic Steel and Midvale became active and strong in the last hour, selling at highest for the day.

New Haven in the last hour was off 1¼ at 29¾. Reading at the same time had sagged over 5 points in rapid selling.

Higher prices for sugar and lead encouraged the market to business optimism.

Records were made by Coca Cola, up 4⅝ at 72¾; Phillips Petroleum up 1¼ at 57⅝, and Producers & Refiners up 1 at 47⅝.

Year's highs were set up by American Linseed, Inspiration, Marland, Pan-American, Mexican Petroleum and Union Pacific.

SUGARS AT HIGH.

American Beet Sugar sold at a new high above 46 and American Sugar crossed 69 for the first time this year, as reports of higher prices for raw sugar continued to reach the market.

Late in the day Union Pacific reached a new high at 142¾, Canadian Pacific was near its top price at 142, Erie at 18¾, Baltimore & Ohio at a new high at 51½, St. Louis, San Francisco common at 30½, St. Paul to 29, Pere Marquette to 35¼ and Atchison to 100½.

There is a large contingent in Wall street persistently touting for the railroad stocks, seeing in them the best possibilities for a substantial market advance.

Announcement of the projected $157,000,000 tobacco merger of United Retail Stores and Tobacco Products attracted sharply to a new year's high, then lost its gain and finally rallied. American Sumatra was off 3 points.

Two decisions of the United States Supreme Court caused wide movements in affected issues.

The ruling in the Reading case granting holders of Reading Company first and second preferred shares equal rights in the distribution of the company's assets with holders of the common stock resulted in a decline of 3 points on the common, while the first and second preferred shares rose 4¼ and 5 points, respectively.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC OFF.

Southern Pacific fell around 3 points on the ruling of the court, which declared its combination with Central Pacific illegal. Union Pacific, expected to benefit by this decision, rose one point.

Southern Pacific-Central Pacific collateral trust 4 per cent. bonds, which rose sensationally on Monday from 83 to 84½, reacted 2 points in early trading.

Standard Oil of New Jersey, Mexican and Pan-American Petroleums and General Asphalt featured the ills in the early afternoon at 1 to 3 point advances.

Representative steels and equipments were quarrelsome. Bethlehem Steel first and second preferred and Nova Scotia Steel rose 5 to 4 points.

American Sugar, Food Products, Coca Cola and Sears Roebuck were 1 to 2¾ points higher and Twin City Rapid Transit gained 3½ points.

The motor stocks were generally inactive, with Studebaker alone in 1 or more of the low priced issues, in which Republic Motor at 11¾ was prominent.

$5,000,000 B. & M. BONDS ALLOWED

Augusta, Me., May 31.—The Boston & Maine Railroad has been authorized by the Public Utilities Commission to issue $5,600,000 in 6 per cent. bonds, payable in 1936, to refund a similar bond for that amount maturing June 1.

VENTURA LEAPS TO RECORD IN BOSTON

Stocks in the Boston market closed irregular, but more up than down. The day was featured by Ventura Oil's leap to a record high at 82¾, up 5¾, where it held its gain in late session trading that was not especially active.

Gray & Davis, after slipping off at theopening, advanced to 19¾ for a 1922 high.

B. & M. B OFF 3.

New Haven relinquished a point. Boston & Maine B lost 3 points, the latter heading the list in the new legal tangles the railroad faces by the action of minority stockholders.

New highs for 1922 were made by Calumet & Hecla, up a point at 255; Copper Range, up ⅝, at 46⅝; Old Dominion, up ⅛ at 37; Isle Royale, up 1¼ at 26¾; Mohawk, up ½ at 67½; Quincy, up 3 at 40; Wolverine, up 1¾ at 86½; Maryland, up 1¼ at 48½, and Warren Brothers, up 1¼ at 36½.

DUKE WILL LEAD BIG MERGER IN TOBACCOS

New York, May 31.—Completion of plans for what is virtually a $157,000,000 tobacco merger is announced by James M. Dixon of the Tobacco Products Corporation.

The new combination is to be formed of the Tobacco Products and the United Retail Stores Corporations, the latter of which controls, by stock ownership, the United Cigar Stores Company. The new merger, it is understood, is to be under the guidance of James B. Duke, founder of the American Tobacco Company and the British American Tobacco Corporation.

Expansion of the business of the United Cigar Stores Company, which already is operating more than 2,200 stores in more than 1,000 cities, is one of the things contemplated.

TO INCREASE CAPITAL.

The merger is to be effected by an increase of capitalization of the Tobacco Products Corporation and by an exchange of the stocks of that company and of the United Retail Stores for the new Tobacco Products stock to be issued.

Under the terms of the proposed merger the Tobacco Products Corporation is to increase its capital stock from $33,000,000 par value to $107,354,000 par value. The new stock is to be composed of two classes, one "A" and the other common. Class "A" is to be 7 per cent, non-cumulative, on which dividends are to be paid shortly after completion of the merger. The common, it is believed by officials of the Tobacco Products Corporation, will receive a dividend of not less than 5 per cent. for the coming fiscal year beginning July 1, 1922.

The proposal to the stockholders of each company is an exchange of their holdings of common stock in each corporation for one-half share of Class "A" of the new 7 per cent. Tobacco Products stock and one-half share of the new common, for each onehare of the present holdings of the common stock.

TAKE ALL COMMON.

The option, however, is extended to the stockholders of both companies of taking all common stock of the new merger in exchange for the common stock of the present corporations. Tobacco Products shareholders may take all Class "A" if they desire.

No shareholder in either company is compelled to make the exchange. If he prefers he may ignore the merger and retain his present holdings. Holders of Retail Stores who do exchange will obtain a certain return of 3½ per cent. and a bonus in common stock that is expected to yield an additional 2½ per cent., thus giving an equivalent of 6 per cent on their present holdings.

An official notice has been mailed to all stockholders of a meeting on June 28, to vote on the proposal.

RHODE ISLAND SHOWS SIGNS OF RECOVERY

Rhode Island, industrially the "sick man" of New England, is showing signs of recovery. Reports show that there has been improvement all along the line the last week. The Commonwealth is far from the land of strikes, lockouts, industrial decay and want that it has been pictured.

Lawrence, another stormy petrel of industrial New England, reports the weekly attempt to settle the strike. The One Big Union will oppose it.

Providence, May 31.—Business in the metal trades plants in the Blackstone Valley is picking up. Even the woolen and worsted industry is not so bad. Mills along the Wyonsa quatucket Valley are putting in more machinery and new departments are starting up. The Providence building boom is still on, and experts agree that the worst of the unemployment is over.

Lawrence, May 31.—The One Big Union will attempt to obstruct the new effort of members of the citizens' strike committee and the State Board of Arbitration to settle the strike.

Ware, May 31.—The Otis Company plant, employing 1,700 hands, and closed since May 5, will open today. The shutdown followed a strike against a wage cut.

Fall River, May 31.—The cloth market remains active. Brokers and manufacturers report many sales. There is much activity in real estate here also.

Nashua, N. H., May 31.—"The mills are going to reopen June 5" is the slogan of everybody here, operators, business men and public officials. In the meantime there is no absolute verification.

New Bedford, May 31.—Building is at high tide here, far beyond the usual. Many business blocks are going up, as well as residences and garages. A real estate firm is endeavoring to build up several cottage colonies. Not so much unemployment.

AUTO OUTPUT UP IN MONTH 30 P. C.

Washington, May 31.—Substantial increases in the production of automobiles and building materials were the outstanding features in trade reports for the month of April, just announced by the Department of Commerce.

Passenger automobiles produced during the month totalled 156,000, or 30 per cent. more than in March, while truck production also showed a substantial gain.

In many lines, the announcement said, April figures did not show the advance over March conditions that might have been expected from the preceding month, although it was regarded as an encouraging sign that "business for the most part is advancing in its less spectacular but more substantial manner."

WHOLESALE LIST PRICES HIGHER

Washington, May 31.—Federal Reserve Board reports that the index number of wholesale prices in the United States, compiled for the purpose of international comparisons, increased about two points during April, or 1.4 per cent.

Imported goods advanced four points to 115, the highest point since November, 1920, and domestic goods increased two points from the index of 144 to 146.

Raw materials and producers' goods rose three points, while consumers' goods remained the same.

Comparisons with a year ago show that the index number of all commodities rose from 146 in April, 1921, to 142 in January, 1922, from which time it has advanced to 143, a net gain for the year of three points.

WITH THE SPIRITS IN A DRY TOWN

In an interview with a press representative, Mr. Doyle sets forth his views on spiritualism, saying that in spirit-land there is a marriage state, but no children. This means that in spirt-land there will be no walking the floors at night or stepping on the spiritual tack—besides, having no babies will add considerably to our spiritual income tax—further, what will become of the doctor?—he will be there. And the perambulator trust?—look at Brooklyn! What will become of the poor German toymaker?—he will be there, no doubt. And the Milk Trust, with their orders for milk falling off?

If we are going to have a successful spirit-land, we must have the babies.—T. E. Powers.

Getting Rich—Not by Accident

When Dumont Clarke Gave Davison His Chance

Copyright, 1922, Star Company

The other day Henry P. Davison died, member of J. P. Morgan & Co., spoken of as one that had risen with extraordinary rapidity. How much he had is not known, but he left four and a half millions "extra" to one son, and was well off. It had been said by the ablest financiers that had he lived, he would eclipse all his competitors.

In Mr. Davison's life, and in all others, SUCCESSFUL OR UNSUCCESSFUL, there is a lesson for those asking, "How can I go forward?"

Young Mr. Davison was alert, energetic, a type of the active, keen, eager young American, when he got his chance to go to New York to work in a bank. He owed the chance to Dumont Clarke, then president of the American Exchange Bank, father of the president of the bank today.

Dumont Clarke interested himself in the keen young man, so eager to work and get ahead. He helped him to a place as cashier in the Liberty National Bank, and Mr. Davison's rise to fame, financial power and to big fortune was rapid.

"Ah," the average young man will say, "SOMEBODY HELPED HIM; he got his chance, the rest was EASY."

But the rest was NOT easy. Dumont Clarke used to tell how young Davison had justified his confidence and the help he gave him by the extraordinary HARD WORK that he applied to everything.

When he got his place in the bank he did not settle down to enjoy a fairly comfortable salary.

First, he made himself acquainted with all the "accounts" in the bank of any importance. He made it his business to know the business and interests of those that kept their money in his bank. He did not learn the thing half way—HE KNEW IT THOROUGHLY.

And when old depositors in the bank, men on whom its success depended, came in to see the "new cashier," they knew nothing about HIM. But they found to their intense surprise that he knew ALL ABOUT THEM. He had made it his BUSINESS to know.

He got the job—then HE WORKED AT THE JOB. Let young men remember that.

Having worked, and knowing his job, he went about improving his chances in an intelligent way.

First, he had shown what he could do. Then he said to the president of the bank, "I am going to make the stock in this bank worth more." The president said he felt sure of it. Davison then explained his plan, to have the bank or bank president buy a certain amount of the bank stock, put it away and allow Davison to pay for it as he could out of his earnings at the price existing then.

The thing was done. Davison worked so hard that he made the stock worth about three times what it had been, and he paid for it at the original price as fast as he could. That was one of the ways in which he started.

The fact that Dumont Clarke gave him his start in New York helped, of course. But if that had been all, Davison might have died a fairly useful official in a bank. But when he got the job, HE DID THE REST. He worked, he did more than he was asked or expected to do. That "MORE" did the business.

First get your chance, then WORK AT IT, and make it better. Then get something else still better if you can. But don't let go of one thing until you have got hold of the other. Any monkey crossing from one tree to another knows enough to hold onto one branch until he has got the other within reach, so that he is sure to grasp it.

Many young men changing jobs don't know as much as that monkey.

Silk Hosiery

Editor Boston American:

There appeared in your paper an article relative to the sale of silk hosiery in New England. The manner of selling was exposed. In behalf of the men that were engaged soliciting for the various concerns, I wish to state that they in most cases were innocent of any attempt to perpetrate fraud on the public.

The writer has heard from various sources that many of the so-called silk hosiery concerns are just enterprising individuals who are buying up the output of small mills and in some cases seconds.

As a solicitor for the past twelve years, I want to go on record as being opposed to concerns doing business at the expense of the buying public and reputation of honest solicitors.

Theatre Hours

Editor Boston American:

Request of "A Visitor" for info as to why theatres in Boston open one-half hour earlier than in any other city in the world noted. The reason is that it is in the interest of the players and the majority of the patrons. Six or seven would be a better opening hour.

I have not been in all the cities in the world, but the Paris opera opens at 7, daylight-saving time. The theatres in Vienna, and Riga, Latvia, opens at 6 during shortly after 9, at which time it is just getting dark in Riga, during Summer. This gives one a chance to enjoy the theatre, have dinner after, and return home at 11. B. S. FIELD.

"Give Us More Oppers"

Editor Boston American:

Mrs. M. De W.'s kick of your attitude on the Irish question, the soldier's bonus question, and your foreign policy. To this amicable lady the terms "Irish Freedom," "Soldier's Bonus," and "No Foreign Entanglements," are as tantalizing as a red rag is to a bull. "A straw best shows how the wind blows," is an old saw; Mrs. M. De W.'s letter shows just exactly her attitude on three vital questions that concern the welfare and the honor of America and the peace of the world.

Your correspondent also objects to Oppen's cartoons. At least she is consistent and does not discriminate. Of course, you will pay no attention to the unreasonable outbursts of disgruntled readers who squeal when you touch their pet sore spots in the interests of humanity and common justice. Go ahead with the good work—and give us more of Opper's splendid cartoons.

Salem. PATRICK J. WARD.

Eviction a Crime

Editor Boston American:

Reading about two aged people committing suicide when about to be evicted and having no place to go, and aware of the mental torture of the millions of homes rent payers, and the breaking up of homes by evictions, suggests that eviction is a crime, and should be so stigmatized. Hence the institution of rent-paying for the right of an abiding place upon the earth, the right to be somewhere, is a real criminal institution; annulling that security for which governments are supposed to be instituted. If we don't know how to abolish rent slavery, and the crime of eviction, then let us think of a way. That is what our brains are for.

Saves Light Cost

Editor Boston American:

We think daylight-saving not only gives one the benefit of the extra hour of daylight, after being shut in all day, but decidedly minimizes the lighting problem in the way of gas and electricity. Long may daylight-saving continue.

MOTHER OF FOUR.

"I WILL FIND A WAY OR I WILL MAKE ONE"

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

TO win a way through difficulties to the stars, that is the life victorious which accepts challenge and converts it into achievement.

Really, none of the prizes of life—power, money, station or other goals of ambition—means so much as the struggle or the pursuit itself.

For our human spirit believes or fancies that Nature taunts our ambition, our aspiration, our very self-respect with the sneer: "Poor fool, thou canst not!"

And proud man flings back the challenge and retorts: "I can!"

Acceptance of Challenge

Most of worth-while life for us is in this confident acceptance of challenge. And most of our power is born of this high confidence, which is as far above mere egotism as the high heavens are above the Dead Sea.

This quality of divine self-confidence in the presence of taunting challenge particularly characterizes the pioneer and the explorer, who in turn symbolize the essential bravery of the human spirit.

Every time you dare to be different, you exhibit in a small way this type of nobility.

America, in a large way, is the shining embodiment of this quality, for ours is essentially a pioneering country and we are a people of explorers.

It was natural that, in time, one of our citizens should have reached the goal sought by the exploring generations, and that Robert E. Peary should have had the unique privilege of planting the Stars and Stripes at the North Pole.

That was more than thirteen years ago. The anniversary of this event was signalized by the unveiling of a monument to Peary in the National Cemetery at Arlington.

Monument to Peary

Upon a granite globe representing this goodly frame, the earth, whose features of sea and land are pictured thereon, you may find the inscription in Latin which means: "I will find a way or make one."

It makes one's spirit straighten as one recognizes in that motto the invincible inspiration of the typical explorer and the inward impulse of all our human striving.

For that is the spiritual revelation of democracy, that the achievements of the best symbolize the possibilities of the average.

In the same way the statue of an Apollo or a Venus stirs our physical self-respect; the thought of a Plato or an Aristotle stimulates our intellectual ambition; the contemplation of a Christ or a Buddha awakens our utmost aspiration.

Because we are deeply aware of a kingship of kind with the best.

Humility and pride are relative terms. Just as democracy bids the average of us to find our finest as the revealers of average possibility, so these in turn identify themselves with that which is more than themselves, be it a Cause or the Infinite.

If This Is Your Birthday

You Are LUCKY

IF today is the anniversary of your birth your character is one that will always be an enigma to yourself as well as to others.

You are unusually intuitive and a splendid judge of character. Your decisions on new enterprises will always rest on your estimate of the personalities involved rather than on the merits of the project itself, and if you distrust one of the promoters you will not participate in it.

Today is one of unusual good fortune. Ask favors and force the issue on all your dealings.

A child born today will be generous, obedient and trustworthy, but inclined to diseases of the throat and lungs in early youth.

ARE YOU DOING YOUR BEST?

What is your idea about giving an honest day's labor?

If you work for a small firm where it is known to a minute just whether you are on the job or not and what is doing, you have to do about right, if you are with any kind of successful business, or lose your job.

To be successful, a man or a corporation has to attend strictly to the details, improving them all the time, or some other concern discovers a loophole to get under and put him or it out of business.

Even with the best sort of management, in these times, some of the most stable and progressive establishments run at a loss.

But what of the man who works on city or government works and cheats the civic or Federal corporation, just because it IS the government?

If you are that sort, you are inherently dishonest.

There are a whole lot of honest men who hold government positions.

But there are a whole lot more who try for them because they think they can "get away with it," and do as little as possible for the money.

Better get in line to do your best, no matter where you are.

SEEN AND HEARD

By Lambert and Daily

JOHN H. COGGSWELL may be saved as a member of the Industrial Accident Board if the Legislature passes the bill to increase the board from five to six members, the sixth to be a woman. Otherwise, GOVERNOR COX will probably appoint a woman to take his place. Coggswell has been indorsed for reappointment by seventy-nine labor unions.

MRS. EMMA FALL SCHOFIELD, who is slated for appointment to the Industrial Accident Board, might be surprised to learn that SENATOR LODGE has urged GOVERNOR COX to give the place to MISS MARION WESTON COTTLE, the woman lawyer.

REPRESENTATIVE HENRY L. SHATTUCK, who gives as much attention to public matters as any other member of the Legislature, is of the opinion that the people will never allow the Elevated to go back to the old gang of private owners.

CHARLES A. UFFORD of Dorchester, father of the plan to electrify the Shawmut branch of the New Haven Railroad, so that the people of the Dorchester District may have a system of rapid transit, says he believes that the entire project will fall of passage this year. He alleges that "someone has thrown a monkey wrench into the machi'ery." Twenty thousand dollars has already been spent in investigation, which will be lost to the State and city.

The city, like any big corporation, at times needs to have done a job in a hurry. This was brought out the other day, when SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC BUILDINGS FRED J. KNEELAND was ordered to erect a reviewing stand in front of City Hall, so that COUNCILLOR FRANCIS J. W. FORD, representing MAYOR CURLEY, could review the Fifth Regiment on parade. The stand was assembled, put together, draped with the National colors and placed on the sidewalk in less than fifteen minutes.

We wonder if the public in general appreciates the fact that Boston at present has a real building commissioner, one that is thoroughly familiar with the workings of the office that he holds. After a lapse of more than two months, in which the civil service failed to approve MAYOR CURLEY'S appointee, they finally passed JOHN H. MAHONEY. He was practically born in the department, having served more than thirty-five years in the city's service.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON INSTINCT AND REASON

By Garrett P. Serviss

"You speak of the intelligence of the spider. Understanding and reasoning go hand in hand with intelligence; there is no intelligence without reasoning or understanding, hence it can be applied to men. How do you apply it to the spider? So is the bee and the ant, you will say. Would you not think that their intelligence is simply 'instinct,' peculiar to their species for self-preservation?—S. S. E., Philadelphia."

I SEE no reason for denying intelligence to animals ranking below man in the scale. Both the lower animals and the human species possess what are called instincts, which are said to act spontaneously without the aid of reasoning. No animal, indeed, possesses a greater number of instincts than man. But if the distinction between instinct and intelligence is to be based on the employment of conscious reasoning, I do not think that the possession of intelligence can be denied to the lower animals because I believe that many of them do exercise a power of reasoning, i. e., of drawing conclusions from observation.

Natural history books are full of instances of what I should call exhibitions of intelligence by dogs, cats, elephants, horses and many other creatures much below these in organization.

In the sciences popularly grouped under the name of "natural history" you cannot find the same solid bases for positive conclusions as those which exist in the mathematical field. Whenever mathematics can be applied you have certain established and universally recognized axioms and unvarying methods which all use alike, and armed with them one is in a positon to reach conclusions and to make affirmations that cannot be successfully contested; but it is not so with regard to questions concerning the conduct of animals.

It will not do to ascribe an action performed by an animal to mere instinct because it was evidently done for self-preservation. We should be shutting ourselves out of the realm of reasoned conduct if we pushed that doctrine to its limit. Take some concrete examples: When that excellent naturalist, observer and reporter, Thomas Belt, was superintending a gold mine, and in his leisure hours studying nature in Nicaragua, he made some fascinating studies of the conduct of columns of marching ants of the genus Ecitton. His own words are best:

"I once saw a wide column trying to pass along a crumbling, nearly perpendicular slope. They would have got very slowly over it, and many of them would have fallen, but a number having secured their hold, and reaching to each other, remained stationary, and over them the main column passed.

"Another time they were crossing a watercourse along a small branch, not thicker than a goose-quill. They widened its natural bridge to three times its natural width by a number of ants clinging to it and to each other on each side, over which the column passed three or four deep. Except for this expedient they would have had to pass over in single file, and treble the time would have been consumed."

Mr. Belt adds: "Can it not be contended that such insects are able to determine by reasoning powers which is the best way of doing a thing, and that their actions are guided by thought and reflection? This view is much strengthened by the fact that the cerebral ganglia in ants are more developed than in any other insects."

Medbury Says—

Amateur's Ambition Is to Write a Good Story. Song Writers Haven't This Ambition

By John P. Medbury

Times are certainly changing. Six years ago one man could write a good song, but now it takes four or five of them to write a poor one.

The reason for this may be that no one man will take the blame for the songs they're publishing nowadays.

One fellow who has the word "Love" meets a guy who has the word "Above," so they decide to write a popular song.

Then they dig up two birds to write the melody. They either have to have a good ear for music or a good memory.

No song is complete any more until everybody who had anything to do with it has his name on the cover.

The only thing they forget to put on the title page is the name of the errand boy who took it down to the printer.

They'd have his name on it, too, if he didn't object.

By the time you get through reading the data on the title page you're too tired to sing the song.

Some firms put so much reading matter on the cover that before you get through with it the song is out of date.

They ought to put music to the words on the title page and we could sing those too.

These song writers often sit up all night composing songs, but the public would just as soon they'd get a little sleep.

Lots of songs are written on street corners. No wonder the cops make everybody "move on."

Every amateur's ambition is to write a good song. It's too bad that a lot of song writers haven't got this ambition.

Some melody writers write quicker than others. One guy wrote a song and it took him six months to get the air. He should have gotten it as soon as the publisher heard it played.

It's safer for three or four guys to write the same song and then each one can blame it on the other.

When five men write a song together they don't all write. Two of them actually work on it, and the other three stand guard to see if anybody's coming.

Some writing is an art, but it's getting to be a crime.

It isn't any harder to write a popular song now than it used to be. One guy can write the average song in a day, but think how much time they save when five of them do it.
